Forces 'Waste Men'

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the 15,000 increase in Canada's armed forces announced early this month was approved by the government in the face of a finance department report stating that many thousands of men were already being wasted in the navy, army and air force.

The paper says it learned the report was put before the cabinet by the Treasury Board two months ago and that it maintained there was enough available evidence of misused manpower to warrant an intensive survey of personnel employment in the three services.

CUT IN HALF

"As a result of the fierce opposition of Finance Minister Fleming, the original defence department request for another 30,000 men was cut in half, but the additional cost to the treasury in a full year for the 15,000 men will run as high as $150,000,000 annually," the story says.

"The finance minister argued that the defence department should be able to find the men it needs to expand the operational capability of the armed forces without any increase in total manpower by making far more efficient use of the personnel it already had."

BEFORE BERLIN

"The report from the Treasury Board, submitted before the Berlin crisis led to cabinet consideration of an increase in the armed forces, intimated that anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 men could be cut out of the total force of 120,000 without reducing the efficiency or effectiveness of the three services."

Foes Ate Soldier

BULAWAYO, Northern Rhodesia (AP) — Mrs. Kathleen McKay, a widow, is claiming $7,000 ($31,500) from the Katanga government on the grounds her husband was eaten by cannibals while serving with the Katanga army.

Acting UN Chief Urged by West

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States and Canada said in different words Friday that an executive officer must be appointed as interim successor to Dag Hammarskjöld despite the opposition of the Soviet Union.

External Affairs Minister Green told correspondents "we do strongly support" the appointment of a United Nations secretariat interim chief to fill the void left by Secretary-General Hammarskjöld's death in a plane crash. U.S. State Secretary Rusk said in a statement "action must be taken now to assure that the functions of the office of the secretary-general are performed effectively and fully while agreement is sought on the appointment of a new secretary-general."

WORK ON RESOLUTION

These developments came while a group of middle-of-the-road countries worked on a proposed resolution for the 99-member UN General Assembly to name a temporary head for the secretariat. Some 30 countries were reported behind the resolution.

Green said Canada was "strongly" behind the move for the assembly to act on the appointment, which would not carry the title of secretary-general.

Green met reporters shortly after conferring with U Thant, Burma's permanent representative at the UN who is mentioned as a prospect for the interim job.

STAY INSIDE

But the Canadian foreign minister would not say whether U Thant had professed himself a candidate.

Green said there was no need to look outside the UN for a candidate. When a reporter mentioned that Rusk had called for "an outstanding world leader" for the job, Green said he would not "have put it quite like that."

Canada Goes Into the Red

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government had a deficit of $82,300,000 on August operations which put it in the red for the first five months of the 1961-62 fiscal year, the finance department reported Friday.

Five-month deficit was $77,400,000. Finance Minister Fleming expects a budgetary deficit of $650,000,000 for the year ending next March 31.

home of the British prime ministers."

"Hear, hear," chorused 82 members of Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, the carpenters' union.

"I trust that when Labor returns to power, we will be invited here again to sort out our little problems," McCleery added.

"Make him prime minister," shouted one of the carpenters attending one of the strangest meetings in the long history of No. 10.

The famous dwelling — together with numbers 11 and 12 — is undergoing extensive repairs. Eighty-two workers of the $3,500,000 job are carpenters.

Columbia Pact Safe—Williston

By PETER BRUTON
Colonist Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston is "relying on U.S. pressure" to change Ottawa's adamant stand against the export of Columbia River power.

The minister told residents here that he did not think the U.S. would become fed up waiting for Ottawa and Victoria to come to terms and turn to other sources of power for their needs.

"They (the U.S.) are not going to run off the Columbia despite what some people are saying," said Mr. Williston in an address at the Marina Hotel. "They'll stay with us."

WONT LAPSE

Later he confided: "I don't think the Columbia treaty will lapse unless the federal government gets too bull-necked about it."

Mr. Williston said the U.S. needed the Columbia and would pressure Ottawa for a change in its stand against the sale of the downstream benefits.

CHEAP POWER

Such a sale, he said, "will ensure British Columbians of the first really cheap power they have ever had in history."

And he said it would be virtually impossible for the province to absorb the downstream benefits if they came back here.

"If Ottawa says you can't export... they've got the power to make a decision," he said.

SELL AT PROFIT

"B.C.'s stand is that we can sell it and sell it at a profit. Five mills is a profitable sale. It will pay the amortization costs of dams at Mica Creek, High Arrow and Duncan Lake. When people say we are selling out the Columbia, that's the cost on the Columbia and its zero cost."

Under terms of the Columbia treaty, he said, B.C. would create the storage for the U.S. and in return would get benefits "on life immediately" of about 70 per cent more power.

ABSORB OVERNIGHT

"We've got to absorb it," said the minister. "It took us about 12 years to absorb the Bridge River generation which was about the same amount. But we've got to absorb it."

overnight or else let it go to waste."

Mr. Williston added: "It doesn't matter a hill of beans what the Columbia power costs unless you can sell every kilowatt."

Firms Look North

Colonist Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two large industries are investigating the possibility of establishing plants in the central interior as a result of the government's decision to go ahead with the Peace River power project, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston disclosed here yesterday.

He said one was a chemicals industry and the other was to do with the electrolytic processing of metals.

"One of the companies is big league," said the minister who refused to say whether they were U.S. or Canadian firms.

REQUIRE BIG BLOCKS

Both would require large blocks of power, however.

Mr. Williston said two other companies were considering establishing pulp mills in the Prince George area and the chemicals would be used for the pulp processing.

He said representatives of the companies considering establishing plants in the central interior had called on him in the last few weeks to determine the government's plans for the Peace River project.

Mr. Williston announced this industrial interest in the north to back up his statement that the Peace was necessary if secondary industries were to be established to provide more jobs.

The question, Mr. Fulton said in a later speech to University of British Columbia students, was:

"Shall we use this cheap power as a cornerstone on which to build a great industrial complex, or shall we float it down the river like so many logs so that our American

Accept Columbia Or Scrap It Fulton Tells B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton declared Friday that the next move on development of the Columbia River is up to Premier Bennett and his Social Credit government.

He told reporters at a press conference that B.C. must make up its political mind whether it wants the international treaty on Columbia development — "and if not, that's the end of it." Ottawa would not try to force B.C. to accept anything it did not want to accept.

U.S. 'RESTLESS'

He reiterated a charge that the provincial government had changed its position since the Columbia negotiations. It now insisted on sale of Canada's share of downstream benefit power to the U.S., something which the federal government would not condone.

The Americans were getting "restless" to get on with the project. If no action was taken soon the U.S. would be forced to commit itself to other power sources and B.C.'s chance of power at 3.6 or even 3.4 mills per kilowatt hour would be lost. Yet the premier was trying to tell the people that Columbia power would cost 6.35 mills per kilowatt hour.

Don't Forget to Put Clocks Back Tonight

Clock-setting time is here again.

British Columbia reverts to Pacific Standard Time at 2 a.m. Sunday, requiring that clocks be set back one hour.

Federal, B.C. Tories Heal Seven-Year Rift

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Federal and provincial Conservatives in British Columbia shook hands and officially made up Friday.

For the first time since 1954, when anti-George Drew feelings split the party in B.C., Progressive Conservatives will be operating from one office, with one constitution and one executive.

A special convention of the B.C. Conservative Association made the tie complete by adopting a new constitution.

It took six hours of debate, but was passed unanimously by the 70 delegates.

Justice Minister Davie Fulton will speak at a luncheon today.

Threat of War Never Greater Says Khrushchev

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Khrushchev said Friday the threat of war is perhaps greater now than it has been at any time since the Second World War, and declared Russia ready to negotiate for peace at any time or place at any level.

Khrushchev blamed a West for world tension and said any talks between he and President Kennedy should be part of a wider plan to draw up a German peace treaty.

Disarmament package. Again he linked the questions of complete and universal disarmament and the question of nuclear weapons tests and said both questions must be solved simultaneously.

Khrushchev made the statements in a letter sent to leaders of the non-aligned nations, who attended a summit conference in Belgrade earlier this month.

The letter was an answer to a letter delivered from the Belgrade conference by Indian Prime Minister Nehru and Ghana President Nkrumah.

CENTRAL QUESTION. Khrushchev's letter to Nehru, as reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, charged the West with "intensifying military preparations in every way," adding:

"It appears that these countries are not averse to using for a general showdown the central question which divides no delay—the question of a German peace treaty whose conclusion would radically improve the situation in Europe."

Egg-Hurling Students Face Action

University students responsible for turning a downtown parade into an egg fight Thursday face a threat of being either fined or barred from campus activities for the rest of the year.

City police yesterday handed the issue over to the student council. A number of students' names were taken during the disturbance.

The council has authorized an investigation.

Dag's Guard Succumbs

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI) — Harold Julian, American UN guard who survived the air crash that killed Dag Hammarskjöld, died today.

'It Was, You Might Say, Historic'

LONDON (AP) — Irishman Alan McCleery looked up from a table in the cabinet room of No. 10 Downing Street Friday and called the meeting to order.

"Comrades," said Belfast-born McCleery, "it isn't every day that our branch can meet in the cabinet room of the home of the British prime ministers."

"Hear, hear," chorused 82 members of Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, the carpenters' union.

"I trust that when Labor returns to power, we will be invited here again to sort out our little problems," McCleery added.

"Make him prime minister," shouted one of the carpenters attending one of the strangest meetings in the long history of No. 10.

The famous dwelling — together with numbers 11 and 12 — is undergoing extensive repairs. Eighty-two workers of the $3,500,000 job are carpenters.

When time came for a meeting, McCleery, the union's London district secretary, reasoned the best place to hold it would be on location.

For the last five months, Prime Minister Macmillan has been using quarters in Admiralty House.

Interviewed after the No. 10 meeting, McCleery said:

"It was, you might say, a historic meeting for the Woodworkers' Union."

The meeting lasted 10 minutes and took place during the morning tea break.

Subject under discussion was tea breaks. The union reaffirmed its belief in them — on company time.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

HUNDREDS of lobsters were air-expressed to North American newspapermen about five years ago, to publicize a movie.

The movie was "High Tide at Noon," and the lobster-lift set a high-tide mark for publicity brainwaves.

Bruce Lowther, then this newspaper's movie pundit, refused to be stampeded down to the express office at 3 a.m., even to fetch a parcel from Halifax that was marked "Urgent."

He slammed down the telephone, and rolled over for another nap.

It was high noon on the following day (an oddly fitting phrase) before Bruce kept his rendezvous with the lobster. By this time the crusty morsel from Nova Scotia, sweltering inside a damp shroud that had once been packed with ice, had begun a publicity campaign of its own.

Lowther doesn't care for shellfish, anyway. He offered to turn his lobster over to me, but it was too shopworn to suit my taste.

However, the flying lobster stunt was a brilliant stroke of press-agency. "Nobody will ever equal this one," I thought.

I was mistaken. This week the Westminster Paper Co. sent me two rolls of tissue, which turned out to be nothing but paper towels, after all, and on each perforated section of towel was a message, ready for the printer.

These fleecy-soft press blurbs informed me that Hazel, the know-it-all housemaid of the Saturday Evening Post cartoons, was to be brought to life by Shirley Booth on the English-language network of the CBC, each Sunday at 7 p.m., starting Sept. 24.

From the same people there arrived a filbert encased in a cellophane bag that was pinned to a note saying: "We're nuts about Hazel."

So my life has been enriched by the edible press release, and the press release that I can dry my hands on.

Now I'm waiting for the press release that bites—and last of all—the press release that blows up.

What could be more embarrassing than to make an appointment, and then lose the address and telephone number? That happened to me yesterday. I checked the telephone book, the city directory, made frantic telephone calls to other people of the same name, who sounded puzzled, blank, or frostily polite. No results. Sorry. There doesn't seem to be anything else left to do.

The boy steered his bicycle directly toward the car, on the wrong side of the street. He was a young ruffian of about 10 years of age, with a round, insolent face, and as he came toward the car he wobbled his front wheel back and forth and smirked.

The driver swerved violently to avoid him. "Why do you let the lout throw you into a panic?" I demanded from the coaching seat. "That's what he's trying to do."

"I can't run the boy down," the driver said, pushing back a strand of hair from her face. As we moved along, we passed still more boys and girls on bicycles riding on the wrong side of the road, weaving back and forth from the edge to the centre line.

When one urchin came within inches of tumbling under the wheels, I lowered the window and shouted: "What the devil do you think you're doing?"

He flinched for a moment, and then his sharp features relaxed into a look of pitying amusement, as though to say: "Poor old beetle, he's obviously deranged."

I had noticed the same look of serene self-possession on the faces of 13 and 14-year-olds as they walked to school three and four abreast in the middle of the road, forcing cars to swerve away to the left and never making the slightest movement to give room.

They weren't all like that. Some of the teenagers walked politely at the edge of the road like proper human beings.

But all those middle-of-the-road children—where did they get the idea that they could hog the whole highway, and that everyone had to steer around them?

Were we as ill-mannered and selfish at that age? I asked myself. I thought not. But I didn't remember too clearly. Maybe we were just as bad, or worse.

Vocabulary Limited to Grunts Not Alarming in Three-Year-Old

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: Our son, 3½ years old, is not talking properly. He says some words very clearly, and for other words he just grunts or makes sounds."

"People have recommended that we go to a neurologist. Our regular doctor seems to think the boy is mentally alert.—Mrs. B. N."

The rule of thumb is that a child should be using at least 12 words properly by his third birthday. Both vocabulary and clearness of speech vary considerably, depending on early training, circumstances and a child's aptitude and inclination.

Children are great mimics. They try to say what they hear. Sometimes peculiarities of speech are due to a defect in hearing; in such cases, just observing the child carefully usually provides some added clues.

Since the family's physician isn't alarmed, I would be inclined to go along.

If still in doubt, the parents might have their doctor refer them to a child psychologist, to see whether the youngster fits the pattern for his age.

Otherwise I'd say give the boy a bit more time—expect him to use your words; don't make things too easy for him by learning his words or grunts.

No Atomic War Says Tim Buck

The leader of Canada's Communist party last night voiced the party's new attitude toward nuclear bomb tests before an audience of more than 100 at the Club Sirocco.

The new line as expounded by long-time leader Tim Buck:

So the Russians have begun nuclear testing... but the real aim of the working class is to bring about disarmament.

STARTED HERE

The switch from test-ban to arms-ban took an hour and 45 minutes to deliver, during which Mr. Buck, who launched a coast-to-coast speaking tour with his speech in Victoria, told listeners he did not believe a nuclear war would come about.

"The people won't let it happen, but we've all got to do our part. When Bertrand Russell, 89 years old, can spend a week in jail, surely we can go out on a street corner with a petition."

Mr. Buck said the people of B.C. had set an example to the rest of Canada in leadership against nuclear arms and bomb tests. He cited the committee on Radiation Hazards for its "fine work" in this cause.

The Berlin crisis, said Mr. Buck, resulted from the Western powers "refusing to bring an end to the Second World War and sign a peace treaty," which would recognize "the fact that there are two German states."

DUMPED SOON

He predicted, External Affairs Minister Green would soon be dumped by the Dieffenbacher government for "carrying the ball" on peace proposals.

Another "ball carrier" said Mr. Buck, was James Coyne, fired president of the Bank of Canada.

"We know what happened to him," he added.

FIRMLY SQUELCHED

During the question period, an anti-Jewish outburst was firmly squelched by the speaker.

"Isn't it true that the Jews who control Wall Street fostered the Berlin crisis?" shouted a heckler.

"Jews don't control Wall Street," answered Mr. Buck, "Capitalists do."

THIN ROOF

Workers in a tin mine extending under the ocean from Cornwall, England, claim they can hear massive boulders rolling on the sea floor.

A coroner's jury took less than 15 minutes yesterday to bring in a verdict of "accidental" in the traffic death of Edward Watson Harmston, 74, of 2954 Westdowne.

The elderly man, injured about 5:25 p.m. Sept. 18 in the middle of the 200 block of Cook Street, between Oxford and Sutcliffe, died 10 hours later at St. Joseph's Hospital.

ACCIDENT INJURY

Dr. D. B. Roxburgh, pathologist at the hospital, told Coroner Dr. J. H. Moore and the jury a post-mortem disclosed death was due to bleeding of the brain, resulting from injury suffered in the accident.

Mr. Harmston, he said, sustained a skull fracture, scalp laceration and fracture of one bone in the pelvis.

ON EAST SIDE

Walter McLean, 63 Linden, said he was parked on the east side of Cook Street at the time of the accident.

He first saw Mr. Harmston, he said, in the middle of the block, "passing the centre of the road, his head somewhat low." Traffic at the time was the usual fairly heavy home-bound traffic.

APPEARED UNAWARE

"There was a sound of brakes," Mr. McLean said, "and I saw a car attempting to stop and avoid hitting the man who appeared unaware of the car" at all times.

"I thought the car would stop in time. It was virtually stopped when the man was hit. The man was bowled over and fell heavily on his head. The car stopped short almost immediately."

SPEED ESTIMATED

Mr. McLean estimated the speed of the car before braking at from 20 to 25 miles an hour.

Gordon Ralph Heal, 18, of 6333 Central Saanich, driver of the small car that struck Mr. Harmston, testified with protection of the Canada Evidence Act.

INTO THE PATH

He said he first saw the elderly pedestrian when he was just on or just past the road's centre line, walking into the path of the car. He jammed on his brakes immediately.

Dr. Moore pointed out to the jury there was no evidence of lack of due care on the part of the driver but there was such evidence on the part of the pedestrian, by walking across the road between crosswalks.

TV Pressed To Chop Violence

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal communications chairman Newton Minow yesterday urged broadcasters to press ahead with efforts to eliminate violence from TV screens and increase the number of air hours devoted to news and public service programs.

Specifically, the FCC chairman recommended that the three major TV networks coordinate efforts to put out a regularly scheduled late afternoon children's hour of high quality.

ELISABETHVILLE — United Nations and Katanga province authorities Friday launched separate efforts to feed more than 30,000 starving Baluba tribesmen posing a new threat to Katanga's precarious peace.

Hunger has been a major factor in the appearance of marauding bands of Balubas spilling out from their big refugee camp a mile from the heart of Elisabethville.

President Moise Tshombe of this breakaway Congo province has vowed to crush the rampaging Balubas by force.

Special UN representative Connor Cruise O'Brien said "we are trying very hard to supply the Balubas."

He charged that Katanga officials were trying to block UN efforts.

O'Brien admitted that the UN has had difficulty in controlling the camp, originally established for protection of Baluba refugees from Kasai province.

Tshombe Vows Force

Tshombe accused the United Nations of breaking its day-old truce with his warriors and demanded that the UN evacuate its hard-won position at the city post office.

O'Brien said UN troops intended to remain at their position. "If attacked, we will answer with fire," he said.

O'Brien expressed concern about the hungry Balubas and said Katanga soldiers had refused to allow American Seventh-Day Adventist missionaries to take food to them.

O'Brien said he did not know when the cease-fire commission would start work on formalizing the end of fighting Wednesday night between the UN and Katanga forces. The fierce fighting began when the world body tried to end Katanga's secession from the rest of the Congo.

Meanwhile in Leopoldville, the central Congolese government announced that it would have to resort "to its own means" to put an end to the secession of Katanga.

An official communiqué said Congolese Premier Cyrille Adoula had sent a letter to UN Congo chief Dr. Sture Linner expressing "extreme reserve" about the cease-fire agreement.

Rhodesia Orders Probe In Hammarskjöld Crash

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI) — The Rhodesian government has ordered an immediate public inquiry into the plane crash that killed United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld Monday.

The move was ordered "in view of the circumstances surrounding the accident and its major international significance," the government said.

The inquiry was interpreted by observers as an attempt to quiet persistent hints else

Two Minutes

THERE WAS a time—in the good old days—when very little could be done in two minutes. A man could split a piece of wood, or have a drink of water or just walk a few yards.

Now that man has entered this age of greater scientific and physical advancement he can, if he is an outstanding athlete, run half a mile, or if an astronaut, travel 900 miles going up or 600 miles coming down in the same length of time.

Attractive as both these thoughts may be, the majority of us wouldn't qualify under either of these headings. And so we must be content to settle for a lesser accomplishment during the two minutes at our disposal. Whatever it is, we might say, it won't be much.

But that is just where we would be wrong. In two minutes a single individual can shelter and feed an orphan child, or bring cheer into the sunset years of an old man, or give a boy a basketball and a gym in which to play or teach a blind girl a chance to live a useful life.

Each of us can do all of this and much more with a single contribution representing our earnings of only two minutes of each working day to the Greater Victoria United Appeal.

With contributions representing only that small segment of individual total earnings the campaign can go over the top on its goal of $320,000 which represents the minimum need of its 22 agencies which are at work 365 days a year to help those in our community who need help and provide welfare and character-building services for its youth and adults.

Most of us have neither the time nor skill to teach a blind man to read with his fingers or run a community centre personally. But we can make these and a multitude of other equally necessary services possible in only that same old two minutes a day.

Apart from which, we might even accomplish more that way than we could by travelling 900 miles in space.

Distortion Of Fact

IN ACCUSING Britain of attempting to sabotage the United Nations campaign in Katanga, the Indian Express, one of Asia's largest mass-circulation newspapers, is guilty of distorting the true facts of the United Kingdom's intervention in the operation.

Its purpose in so deliberately mixing fact with fiction is clear. Long an opponent of President Nehru on the issue of India remaining in the Commonwealth, the Indian Express finds itself reduced to falsifying reports to gain support in its "anti-Empire" crusade.

Not only does it demand that India quit the Commonwealth over the issue but calls for Britain's alignment before the UN General Assembly.

Not content with that, the journal thunders: "There is a limit beyond which utter shamelessness cannot transgress and that limit has been reached. . . . A dent must be made in Britain's insensitive armor and Whitehall must be brought to its senses."

The deadly sin Britain committed in the eyes of the Indian Express is that she did not approve of the UN's armed invasion of Katanga and had voiced the hope that a solution would be found to pave the way for a peaceful settlement on the basis of a unified Congo.

It is difficult to label a simple expression of opinion as an act of sabotage, yet this is what the Indian newspaper is attempting to do.

The only active role played by Britain in the whole unhappy affair was in arranging the Ndola cease-fire talks between Katanga Premier Tshombe and the UN representatives. This was done in co-operation with the government of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland and the direct request of Dag Hammarskjöld.

The rapidity with which the British and Rhodesian governments acted in response to what may have been the late secretary-general's last official communication may yet prove to have played an important part in the saving of hundreds of lives of UN troops from Ireland, Sweden and India.

By ignoring these facts the Indian Express sounds a strange note in a country which professes to be a follower of peace and a friend of humanity.

Fireworks Control

THE MUNICIPALITIES of Greater Victoria seem at last to be moving toward uniformity of bylaws on Halloween fireworks, and if proposed bylaws are adopted and properly enforced, the community will have taken a step long overdue.

The bylaws would not prevent the sensible use of fireworks. They would allow fireworks to be purchased only in the last two days of October and to be set off only between noon and midnight on Halloween, and not in public places. They would thus permit family and neighborhood fun in the better tradition of Halloween, which includes scaring away witches and goblins with suitable bangs and showers of sparks.

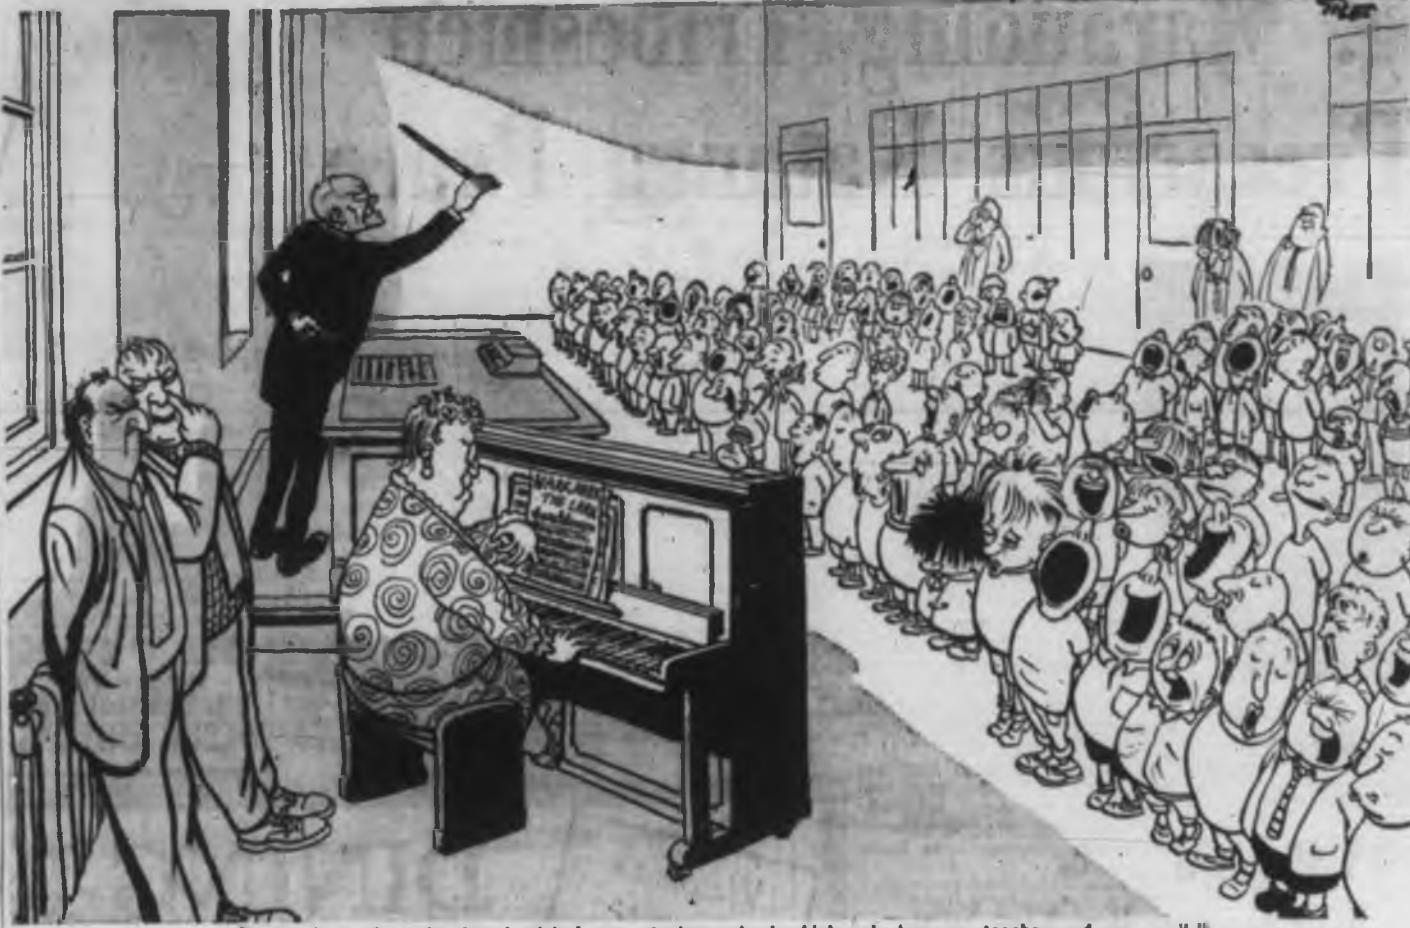

But if enforced, they would put a stop to some of the abuses of the occasion. They would stop children in their late teens and their twenties driving along throwing firecrackers and bombs from their cars; they would stop fireworks being thrown into cars or at people in the street; they would prevent the extension of Halloween into mid-November; they would ensure that young children setting off fireworks would be at home or at a neighbor's home and therefore likely to be under some responsible supervision.

Unfortunately, however, these benefits of the proposed bylaws depend upon proper enforcement and the enforcement of the law at Halloween always leaves much to be desired. This situation probably is to be expected—highly mobile vandals and bullies obviously far outnumber the police—but adoption of the new bylaws could well be the signal for a stronger approach to the problem.

The fire chiefs of Canada in convention this summer went a step farther than Greater Victoria councils apparently wish to go at this time, and called for a ban on the import, manufacture and sale of fireworks in Canada.

It would be a pity, perhaps, if all the fun of watching displays and setting off firecrackers and rockets and bombs and pinwheels were thus to disappear from the Canadian scene.

But unless the abuse of fireworks can be brought under control, this may in the end be the only course to follow. All the fun of fireworks is not worth the cost in human suffering as long as abuse continues.

"Singing isn't the only time I wish I was at that school which only has one teacher and one pupil."

The Fall of Adenauer

End of an Era In Germany

By F. R. MANOR, from Bonn

LAST Sunday brought sun and shine and warmth all across Germany. It also brought to an end an important era in German history.

The regime of Chancellor Adenauer, authoritarian perhaps but solid and reliable, is no more, and since no single party achieved an overall majority in the general election the worst predictions have come true.

Chancellor Adenauer did not fall on Sept. 17; his fall may be dated from Aug. 13 when Walter Ulbricht, chief of the East German Communist regime, ordered construction of his "wall of shame" in Berlin. It was indeed pitiful to watch the floundering of the aged giant in the last weeks of the election campaign. Still agile and quick off the mark, Chancellor Adenauer was no longer his old self.

His own party no longer trusted his judgment. Election propaganda rapidly shifted to Vice-Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, father of the German economic miracle—whom Dr. Adenauer angrily but futilely disavowed as his heir apparent two days before polling day. The chancellor's election rallies were booed and he was attacked right and left—something beyond imagination even two months ago when Dr. Adenauer still towered as Germany's symbolic father and grandfather figure.

The reasons for his fall may seem trivial to a foreign observer, but apart from the irrational anger over Ulbricht's wall that has gripped such a large part of the German population there is no doubt that Dr. Adenauer's refusal to fly to Berlin immediately after the sealing off of the Eastern sector largely contributed to his fall. One asks in vain how Dr. Adenauer's trip to Berlin could have helped the Berliners and one can sympathize with the chancellor's assertion that his presence in the inflamed atmosphere of Berlin could have provided the spark to light an explosion.

All this reasoning is in vain: to part of the German electorate this absence from Berlin was an unforgivable sin for which Germany now is paying by having lost her stable government.

Nor did German discontent over the Berlin situation help substantially. Mayor Willy Brandt as the new leader of the Social Democratic opposition party. Although he won almost five per cent more votes than his party did four years ago he failed to achieve the decisive victory—rated among observers as at least 40 per cent of the popular vote as against 38 per cent— that would have stifled powerful opposition to his leadership within the party.

There are strong nationalist and fellow travelling trends within the German Social Democrats and Mr. Brandt will be hard put to it to keep his party together and avoid a split within it.

This, of course, is the great tragedy of German politics—that in these fateful days when Germany will finally be presented with a long delayed bill for the lost war it has no party strong enough to rule nor a party strong enough to offer an alternative government.

Ingrained German fear of the "red" party has prevented socialists from growing into a radical reform party such as the British Labor Party or the Scandinavian parties in Scandinavia and so attract sufficient numbers of middle-class voters to provide an alternative to the Christian Democrats. The Free German party has now become the receiver in the Berlin bankruptcy. The presumably right wing vote, resentful at the events of Berlin has left the Christian Democrats and above all others, the German Reich party—a small right wing group, that in the last parliament collaborated with Dr. Adenauer's government and that now has shrunk from eight per cent to 2.7 per cent of the total poll. This vote went clearly to the Free German party which is a strange conglomeration of bedfellows.

It was originally the party of true, sincere Liberals, who survived Hitler's days and whose leaders are Germany's outstanding intellectuals at the universities. These have been joined in postwar years by ambitious nationalists and young Nazis and the party is lavishly supported by the segment of German industry that opposes Dr. Adenauer's political concept of the European community and hankers instead after German economic and, if necessary, political rapprochement with the Communist East.

This segment of German industry already wielded enough influence in the last German government to have Germany veto Israel's application for associated membership in the European community. The German industrialists feared, without giving any thought to the political implications of their action, that Israel's membership could jeopardize Germany's new markets in Arab countries.

It is said that Erhard is not wholly out of sympathy with these more nationalist and neutralist aims and this in turn may produce a rift within the Christian Democratic party where the more nationally-inclined Protestant wing led by Dr. Erhard could detach itself from the Catholic pro-European cult of the party and coalesce with the equally nationalist Free German party. These, however, are long term nightmares. The immediate prospect is for an early government of Chancellor Erhard with Franz Josef Strauss as his foreign minister.

Mr. Strauss has been pictured as the bogeyman of German politics but the common consensus of both German and foreign observers is that he is a courageous politician of solid worth even though his Bavarian beer-drinking jollity somehow may not be quite up to the standards required for the chancellor's post.

However, his stature has been hitherto measured by Dr. Adenauer's gigantic figure and it is quite possible that by the time Mr. Strauss got that far the stature of the post would have shrunk considerably.

More than 45 per cent of the German people endorsed Dr. Adenauer's policy of a United Europe and no adventures in the East, political or otherwise. But there has been a sufficient number of voters whom the irrational anger over Berlin swayed to vote against Dr. Adenauer's policy.

After the First World War the Weimar republic, with its ever-changing regimes and eternal party squabbles, lasted for 12 years before falling to Hitler's storm troopers. Dr. Adenauer's stable regime that brought Germany to a pinnacle of prosperity also lasted 12 years.

Perhaps one should not read too much into such coincidences of history.

Arabs' Policy

By R. A. R. PHILBY, from Beirut

A CONSTANT feature of the attitudes of the Arab world which must puzzle many Westerners is the consistent tendency to turn a blind eye to the initiatives of Mr. Khrushchev, however blatantly aggressive these may be, while continuing to condemn the West in strong terms.

The explanation lies in Arab obsession with their own problems to the exclusion of larger world issues, even after it has become obvious, as now, that world issues are of overriding importance to the survival of the Arabs themselves.

For the past six years the Soviet Union has steadily supported the Arabs with both moral and material help, while the Western powers have more often than not placed themselves in a position of hostility to Arab aspirations. The whole dreary story from Suez to Bittere suggests that when ever there is hope of an improvement in Arab relations with the West, some issue must arise to blow the hope away.

In these circumstances it is useless to expect that the Arabs will measure West and East with the same yardstick, and much water will flow under the bridges of the Nile before this situation is changed.

Arab leaders and officials: inspired commentators have been congratulating themselves on the results of the Belgrade conference of unaligned nations, but the general public, perhaps with surer instinct, view the event with calm if not apathy.

The Arabs, of course, were particularly disappointed in the "emancipated" resolution concerning Israel. It is true that the conference called for a restoration of Arab rights in Palestine, but what the Arabs wanted was unequivocal support of their position on the part of the non-aligned nations in New York which, they feel, might have put some slight brake on Western backing for Israel.

The Arabs were pleased over the decision of the neutrals not to form a "third bloc." The only bloc the Arabs want—and even here they are not unanimous—would be an Arab bloc.

"Positive neutrality," according to current Arab opinion, does not mean absolute neutrality. It means, in effect, preserving freedom of judgment in all circumstances. Thus, in any given issue, they could steer straight down the middle, or veer eastward or westward, in the light of their own interests.

And here again Israel exercises a powerful hidden influence. The Arabs have no intention of seeing their Jewish policy dictated to them by any outsider, not even by their partners in a non-aligned group.

In the same way the Arab attitude towards larger world issues, such as the Berlin crisis and the resumption of nuclear tests, is dictated by their own parochial interests. In short they have no wish to die for Berlin. One Arab nationalist leader of influence argued: "We Arabs have never suffered from the Germans, and we don't wish them ill. But still, we don't wish to risk the destruction of civilization for the freedom of a people who have seldom appreciated it either for others or for themselves. It is incomprehensible to us that you Westerners, who have suffered German aggression twice in a generation, should be willing to see the world destroyed for their sake."

Very few Arabs wish to be either red or dead, but if given only an inescapable choice, the answer would certainly be "red." Their argument rests on a simplified view of history. "Empires come and empires go. None knows better than we Arabs why should you think that a Communist empire would last any longer than the British?"

A variant of this train of thought is that the West may have a perfectly good right to commit collective suicide, but can have no conceivable right to endanger the lives of millions who have never heard of the issues involved.

Harder To Lift

By GREGORY CLARK

AS I was about to step off the curb and make a short cut across the busy downtown street, a voice behind me said:

"Eh, eh, Dad!" It was a young constable, and he was giving me a reproving smile.

"Sorry," I said, guiltily, and fell in beside him to walk to the corner to make a legal crossing.

"I suppose," I said, "you have a lot of trouble with us older busters. Habits of a lifetime."

"No," said the constable. "As far as I've observed, there is only one generally I would make about jaywalkers."

"And what's that?" "They're nearly all got big feet," said the young constable. "It's funny but it's true. Women and men both. I figure over 80 per cent of jaywalkers have unusually big feet."

"Would that be," I asked, "because big feet are harder to lift, and they favor short cuts?"

"I don't know the reason," said the constable. "But they've nearly all got big feet."

We saluted, and I crossed over legally, lifting my size seven very nimbly.

Difficult Decision

By ARTHUR BLANKLEY

THE Commons defence debate has shown that both of Canada's major political parties approach with the greatest reluctance any decision to arm Canada's armed forces with tactical nuclear weapons.

The weapons in question aren't the great bombs and super-bombs capable of destroying the largest cities and their unfortunate inhabitants—the ultimate weapons in which the great powers hold in reserve as a deterrent. Such weapons Canada doesn't have, doesn't need and doesn't want. And one of the few consolations for Canadian parliamentarians is that they weren't required to contemplate the possibility of Canadian use of these great destroyers.

The nuclear arms that have figured in their deliberations are what might be described as the smallarms of nuclear warfare—small atomic warheads designed for use by conventional forces in conjunction with special cannon or missiles against enemy bombers, tanks, bridges or other tactical targets.

The CCF-New Democratic Party position is attractively simple. It is against Canadian use of any nuclear arms, large or small, in any way, shape or form. Period.

The Liberals and Conservatives feel much the same way about nuclear arms. But they suspect that a Canadian decision to opt out would be dangerously unrealistic, depriving Canadian troops of new weapons which their potential adversaries already possess in abundance.

After a good deal of hemming and hawing, the Liberals have finally worked out a policy position on nuclear armaments which, if not entirely satisfactory in every respect, seems to them to be the best available. They oppose any move to acquire such weapons for use on Canadian soil.

But they are prepared to give ground grudgingly with respect to Canadian forces attached to NATO in Western Europe. Since NATO relies for much of its defensive capability on such weapons, they would raise no objection if NATO's Canadian units were issued such weapons. But only if these tactical weapons were and remained at all times under NATO control.

The Conservatives, who find themselves in the unhappy position of having to make the decision, since they are in office, have erected their policy decision out of diverse statements scattered across the pages of Hansard since 1958.

They add up to something like this. Canada won't accept such arms unless an agreement providing for "joint control" of the nuclear warheads by Canada and the United States (the latter as the supplying country) can be worked out. Further, once such weapons are acquired, they would be subject to use only "as the Canadian government decides and in a manner approved by the Canadian government."

Again, such a decision would be reached in the light of international developments and Canada's defence requirements. Further—and Prime Minister Diefenbaker is the author of this one—Canada would postpone such a decision as long as any progress was being made in the matter of disarmament. Once made, such arms would be available for use by Canadian forces on the North American continent, as well as in NATO, to enable the Bomarc missile to cope with any hostile bombers that might appear in an emergency. But throughout the defence debate it was noticeable, except for CCF-New Democratic Party orators, no one discussed the issue with any degree of enthusiasm.

"I disagree . . . We should steal this one! There's no preoccupation with the traditional aesthetics of plastic value, composition, quality of line, harmony of color, yet it has an emotional, almost mystical power, that is overwhelming . . ."

Letters to the Editor

Life-Savers

I have read with interest the report of the meeting of the Greater Victoria Current Affairs Council in The Daily Colonist Sept. 20 under the byline of Edmund Casgrove.

It is unfortunate that the remarks of Commodore V. S. Godfrey were not completely reported. When Dr. R. H. Wright had demolished the necessity for shelters during nuclear war to his own satisfaction and had stated that they were essentially useless, Commodore Godfrey quoted the opinion of Dr. G. M. Shrum, former head of the department of physics, University of British Columbia, which was contained in the Aug. 1961 issue of EMO National Digest: "The recent laudable attempts of our government to encourage the construction of fallout shelters seem to have intensified the controversy."

The fact of the matter is that fallout shelters, like dug-outs, will save lives. It doesn't matter where a bomb bursts there will always be a surrounding area where there will be no casualties except from fallout, and fallout shelters will protect those who have them. Since the fallout radiation decays rapidly, a few hours in a shelter may make all the difference between life and death. The first strike by an enemy would be aimed at missile and bomber bases rather than at population centres. The latter may then be in an area where the only danger would be from fallout, a danger which could be overcome by shelters.

Many of the questions asked at this meeting could be resolved by reference to the speech of Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the House of Commons on Aug. 30, 1960. B. H. E. GOULT.

Weapons

I notice by the paper that the members of the school-board are concerned about the schoolteachers wearing spike-heeled shoes, with some basis for their argument; however, I feel that they used rather a heavy-handed method with regard to the tonnage of these individual teachers, for one must admit that some three-quarters of the said tonnage lands on the ball of the foot; therefore it is doubtful if these executive gentlemen have much of a case. So why not approach the situation from the angle of "toeing dangerous weapons?"

For should one of these matrons of learning get into a too heated argument with a sister of the profession—or the principal for that matter—all she has to do is reach down and yank off a shoe, and, used as a night-stick it could be disastrous.

TOM D. BATESON.

Indifferent

In view of present perplexing and uncertain world situation the silent complacency of Victoria citizens is hard to understand. Although we have not been told if we are to accept and use nuclear weapons, or if we have a voice in methods to be used to assure survival of our grandchildren, we seem completely indifferent, and with no suggestions to those assuming authority revealing either our opinions or our choices of procedure. Whether this attitude is due to complete trust in our top men, to childish innocence, or to mindless indifference is the 364 question. There is the possibility, though, that due to bargain-day sales advertising, money to be made by guessing the right man-of-the-hour, the best and cheapest cigarette or the lowest gas-consuming car or best and cheapest fur coat or hat, we have become dollar-minded.

Has the dollar to be gained at bingo, or by guessing correct answers on radio, supplanted interest in human interest and human survival? No doubt we are a wonderful people, if we really understood ourselves. But since at the moment we are uncertain whether to put our trust in "faith" or in basement shelters, I doubt if any one of us does.

Snow Starts Autumn

Winter Early in Edmonton

EDMONTON (UPI)—Winter. The weather office predicted made an earlier than usual snowfall throughout the appearance here Friday, the weekend but the snow, mixed first day of autumn, as light with rain, was melting as soon snow fell during the morning, as it touched the ground.

Weathermen said the system bringing the snow and rain moved in from the Peace River district, where a few flurries were reported.

The overnight temperature here dropped to 34 degrees and the weather office said temperatures would continue some 15 degrees below normal, due to a static body of cold, moist air over the Prairies.

Pressure on Ottawa Sought from U.S.

There had been talk, he continued, of selling the power to the U.S. for a year or so until B.C. could absorb it. NO FIRM ENERGY

"The U.S. has got all the secondary energy it wants but it hasn't got firm energy," said Mr. Williston.

"If we only agree to sell it to the U.S. for two or three years the U.S. doesn't want it and can't pay any more than two mills to 2½ mills for it," he said. "If we sell it at this dump price it's already costing us four mills so the cost there fore to us will be six mills. And if we're not using all of it transmission costs go up."

NO DISPUTE

The minister hit out at critics who said there was a dispute between Attorney-General Robert Bonner and himself and Premier Bennett over power policies.

"We are constantly being badgered into a corner by people saying there is a difference of opinion," said Mr. Williston. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

B.C. had insisted that the final financial arrangements for construction of the Columbia project must be made by federal Finance Minister Dan-iel Fleming and Premier Bennett.

GRADUALLY DISAPPEAR

But B.C. found it impossible to try and create "a bridge" between the two men.

Mr. Williston said that in due time the downstream benefits to be paid in the form of power by the U.S. would gradually disappear.

Then B.C. would be paid nothing, he maintained.

Use Columbia Or Scrap It Says Fulton

neighbors can further enlarge their rich and thriving economy in the Pacific North-west?"

Cheap power—the Columbia would provide eventually some 6,750,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy a year—was essential to the future prosperity of B.C. Yet Premier Bennett wanted to sell this to the U.S. and develop the Peace River through the recently ex-pro-riated B.C. Electric, he said.

Mr. Fulton sidestepped at his news conference a direct answer to a question as to whether Ottawa would step in to block the Peace. He said a federal survey will go ahead on possible effects on Mac-kenzie River navigation by the Peace. There were other un-resolved problems, such as timing of construction, avail-able markets and the price of Peace power.

But in his university speech the federal minister said it was "absolutely untrue" to say that the federal government was "opposed to the Peace River development." Federal concern was with Premier Bennett's proposal to sell Canadian Col-umbia benefits to the U.S.

On the Columbia treaty, Premier Bennett now attacked "the very features of the treaty which were insisted upon by his own cabinet min-isters appointed by him to re-operate with Ottawa in the direction of negotiations."

"We are satisfied that al-though the treaty is not as good as it might have been had the federal government's proposals been accepted, nevertheless it is a good treaty with very great advantages to Canada."

'Worst Sort of Prejudice' Jails B.C. Indian Drinkers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Re-strictive liquor legislation breeds more ill-feeling and suspicion in the minds of young Indians than anything else, Roderick Haig-Brown, author, naturalist and Vancou-ver Island magistrate, declared Friday.

Addressing the Burnaby His-torical Society, the Campbell River magistrate said restric-tive liquor legislation brings Indians "into court when they shouldn't be there. It is the rankest kind of discrimina-tion."

Speaking from 20 years' ex-perience as a magistrate, he said the provincial govern-ment since 1956 has had the remedy in its hands through revision of the Indian Act giv-ing the provinces the right to grant Indians liquor rights.

"In social legislation we're sim-ilarly backward," he said. "There is no probation officer in the province specially trained for Indian work. There is in fact no one at all at such Indian points as Alef Bay of the Prince Rupert area."

"For want of this kind of service Indian young people are sent to jail and industrial schools when white children would not be."

Mr. Haig-Brown also said the Indians once harvested salmon properly and lived by them.

"There was room for the white man but they let in so many white men and damaged the runs so badly."

"Now there is neither a proper living for white or In-dian."

He felt the Indians had some responsibility. They should produce leaders from among themselves and "get over suspicion of the white man."

Bit of Doubt

Stolen Knitting Case Impossible to Sew Up

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) —Magistrate Alfred Watts con-ceeded Friday that com-plainant Mrs. Auriol Forst in- deed knew her own knitting. But he had to throw out her complaint just the same.

Mrs. Forst caused RCMP to bring a stolen goods charge against Arthur Vowells, 37, when she spotted her own home-knit blouse on Vowells' wife 15 months after it and other articles had been stolen from her summer home.

RCMP reported they found all the stolen articles, includ- ing a washing machine, in Vowells' home. But Vowells said he bought all the articles from a stranger in beer par- lor and didn't know they were stolen.

Magistrate Watts ruled that while Mrs. Forst certainly knew her own knitting, the Crown had not proved beyond doubt that Vowells was aware the goods were stolen and dis- missed the charge.

TV Seizures Cause Bedlam in Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI)—France's Secret Army Organization (OAS) seized control of Algiers television station for the second consecutive night Friday and touched off a series of noisy demonstrations against President de Gaulle.

A series of bomb explosions rocked Algiers and other major cities in Algeria following the first television seizing Thursday. Authorities said at least seven persons were killed and 37 injured in outbreaks of anti-government terrorism.

POTS AND PANS

Responding to the OAS call Friday, Europeans crowded their balconies and began banging on pots and pans and shouting "French Algerians!" Cars in the streets picked up the bedlam and drivers leaned on their horns.

Security forces patrolled the streets in armored cars and half-tracks and no serious incidents were reported.

The OAS held the air for about 30 minutes before fleeing the television station.

VICTORY CLOSE

"Courage, victory is close," the broadcast told listeners. The television broadcast was started at 8 p.m. as it was Thursday. The screens went blank and a barely audible voice called on Europeans to demonstrate and reminded them that more demonstrations have been called for Monday.

Radio broadcasts remained normal.

MOSLEM BROTHERS

Thursday former Gens Raoul Salan and Paul Gaudy, heads of the extreme right-wing group, called on Europeans "and our Moslem brothers" to fight de Gaulle's plans.

East Berlin Must Go If UN Transfers Site

WASHINGTON (UPI)—West German Ambassador Wilhelm Grewe said Friday he would agree with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's suggestion to give Berlin international status only if it would mean the transfer of the United Nations headquarters to that divided city.

It would also be necessary for East Germany to vacate its capital of East Berlin, he added.

Diefenbaker suggested in a recent House of Commons speech that Berlin be given an international status as a way of settling the East-West crisis over the city. But he did not spell out exactly whether his proposal included only West Berlin or the entire city.

Grewe said: "Just to suggest that Berlin be given an international status is a vague term."

"I would not agree with it if it did not apply to the UN headquarters."

Singing Career Awaits Geoffrion

Just Call Him Sh-Boom-Boom

By JIM TAYLOR

A few years from now some teen-ager may look through his collection of hit records and find names like Ricky, Elvis, Fabian, Boom-Boom...

That's right, Boom-Boom. Bernie "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion, goal scorer de luxe of Montreal Canadiens, has plans to become a popular singer.

Of course, all this will happen only when he becomes too old for the rigors of the National Hockey League, and right now hockey definitely comes first. But it only took a few minutes of talk with the bulky French-Canadian to learn that he is deadly serious about the idea.

"I got an offer to make records from an agent who handles guys like this Fabian," Geoffrion said. "I never asked anyone on the club executive how they would feel about it, and right now all I'm interested in is hockey. But later, who knows?"

"What are you going to sing, Bernie?" asked a slight skeptic. "Sh-Boom" would be a natural, or you could try "Canadiens Sunset."

"No, I don't think so," he smiled. Then he trotted out his background as a singer.

Last year, he was brought to Toronto and appeared on a CBC network television show with Joan Fairfax, singing "C'est Manique" and "Dear Hearts and Gentle People."

"And when I was younger, I won a contest in Montreal when they had a singing competition in the city's parks," Geoffrion added.

"I was really impressed with those fellows in Toronto. They showed me everything, and this agent said if I want to make a record they will coach me."

But first, to hockey. The man who scored 50 goals last year, fired 12 winners and scored in nine consecutive games to tie records held by Maurice Richard, isn't too worried about a relatively slow start in training camp.

"I always start slow, and the legs are just fair," he said. "But I've had some legs for two years. The legs will tell me when I'm ready."

Geoffrion is 30, which means he hasn't got a great many hockey seasons left. It partly explains his interest in a singing career.

"If I was an unknown I'd have to start right at the bottom singing," he explained. "Hockey has given me everything, and it might help me get started singing too."

After all, Fabian was just a teenage kid with a wild haircut when he was discovered. And how many goals did he ever score?

ROGER MARIS
... 'fall classic

Maris' Hair Falling Out Because of Homer Tension

Roger Maris hasn't been saying much about the pressure that was on him while he tried to break Babe Ruth's home run record, but the truth is out—and so is his hair.

Yesterday the New York Yankee star admitted the strain had been so great that his hair has been falling out in tufts, sending him rushing to a Baltimore doctor.

"I was afraid it was some kind of a disease," Maris said. "But the doctor said it was just a case of nerves caused by strain and tension. He told me it had been building up for some time and said I'd probably have some bald spots but the hair would eventually grow back again."

There were other items in aftermath of the Maris Mad-ness.

Mrs. Babe Ruth heaved a sigh of relief and admitted she didn't want to see Maris break the Babe's record of 60 in a season.

"I have the highest regard for Roger Maris," she said. "He's a fine hitter. But the Babe loved that record. He wanted to be known as the king of home runs forever."

Meanwhile Bob Reitz of Baltimore, who retrieved the ball Maris hit for No. 59 Wednesday, put it on display in a Baltimore sausage market and waited for an offer.

Maris has tried twice to buy the ball, but yesterday was told Reitz wanted $2,500 for it. Reitz later said he would "settle" for two tickets and an expenses-paid trip to the world series.

He may settle for less. Yesterday a wire offering $500 for the ball came from a man in Miami. It was addressed simply to "the man who caught the ball that Roger Maris hit Wednesday."

Giants Balk Cincinnati Reds While Dodgers Creep Closer

San Francisco Giants won't win the National League pennant this year, but they're playing hot with the two teams who are trying to.

The last time they played the second-place Los Angeles they beat them three straight just when it seemed the Dodgers were ready to take Cincinnati.

Last night they went the other way, beating Cincinnati, 6-0, while the Dodgers were downing St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3, to cut the Reds' margin to four games. It left the Reds still needing any combination of four victories or four Dodger losses to wrap up the pennant.

Loaded with power hitters, the Giants used their little guns to whip the Reds. Jose Pagan, a .253 hitter, drove in three runs and Chuck Hiller, batting a lousy .229, drove in two more.

Don Drysdale and Ron Perano teamed up to pitch the Dodgers to their win. Perano came in in the seventh inning with the score 6-3, two men on base and two out. He struck out dangerous Bill White and went on to save Drysdale's 12th victory.

Wally Moon hit a two-run double and Duke Snider his

Jim Gentile hit his fifth grand-slam homer of the season to tie a major league record held by Ernie Banks as Baltimore Orioles stopped Chicago White Sox, 8-6, in the American League.

Frank Lary won his 22nd against nine losses for Detroit Tigers, who beat Los Angeles, 6-4. Lary's previous best season was 1956, when he won 21 and lost 13.

Burnaby Boys Bombed, 15-6 As East Leads Minto Cup

PORT CREDIT, Ont. (CP)—Hastings Legionnaires trampled Burnaby Norburns 15-6 Friday night to take a 3-2 lead in games in the best-of-seven Minto Cup lacrosse series.

Next game in the series is scheduled tonight.

Hastings outshot Burnaby 43-32 in the game, one of the cleanest in the series. Credit for the low score goes largely to goalie Russel Dunn whose performance was flawless.

Burnaby, meanwhile, could draw little support from neominder Skip Jolly who let several long, lazy shots get past him.

Centre Joe Todd and defence man Jim Vilneff each scored three goals for Hastings with Ken Ruitan and Gary Landoni scoring two each.

Singles were scored by Terry Downer, Grant Helfman, Dave Drummond, Gary Curtis and Pete Berge.

Gord Frederickson scored two for Burnaby and single goals came from Gary Stevens, Jim Watson, Sohen Gill and George Longman.

CONTROL GAME

Hastings acted throughout the game as if they owned the ball. Burnaby rarely got a chance to get an attack mounted and when they did either Dunn or the Legionnaires' tight defence broke it up.

Hastings outtan, outmanoeuvred and out-shot the lustless Norburns.

Hill, the slender 24-year-old Denver Open champion, got off to a poor start, but recovered nicely to add a 35-33-68 to his opening round 66.

Steelsmith, after a record-tying 65 opening round, slipped to a 69.

Tommy Aaron, who was tied for second with Hill after the first round, took a 70 and fell into fourth place two strokes behind the leaders.

Al Baiding of Toronto shot a 67 to go with his first-round 70 and move into five-way tie for fifth place at 137.

Jerry Magee of Toronto, who was tied with Baiding at 70 Thursday, shot a 72 and tied with six others for 27th spot at 142.

Three ladies' club championships were decided at city clubs Friday.

Margaret Todd defeated Mrs. G. E. Harris, 5 and 3, to win the Victoria Golf Club title.

Honors at Uplands went to Joan Lawson, who downed Mrs. C. S. Humber, one up.

Vamps Face Tough Foes

Nanaimo Redmen, probably the toughest club in the north half of Vancouver Island, play Victoria Vampires in a juvenile football league game at MacDonald Park Sunday afternoon at 2.

Vampires, under coach Vic Gallup, have beaten Campbell River 35-0 and Courtenay, 37-0, in their first two outings.

Robinson's Contract Negotiated by Lions

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions' executive have appointed a four-man committee to negotiate with ex-coach Wayne Robinson on the remaining 24 years of his contract.

Robinson was signed to a four-year contract prior to the 1959 season, but after a dismal start by the western football conference club this season was suspended and replaced by his assistant Dave Skrien.

Named to the committee were former club president Harry Spring, Don Sutton, Alan Eyre and Cam McLean.

Robinson's suspension was announced Sept. 11 after Calgary Stampeders trounced them in a game here before more than 32,000 fans. The club, which had only a tie against Montreal in seven appearances then, has since lost two more under Skrien.

Bomber-Esk Clash Key Game Tonight

One of the rich is going to get richer and one of the poor is going to get poorer tonight in Western Football Conference action.

The schedule pits second-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers against first-place Edmonton Eskimos and last-place British Columbia Lions against Calgary Stampeders, a team that on the season's won-lost record is not much better.

Going into the weekend, the Eskimos have 15 points on seven wins, a loss and a tie, while the Blue Bombers have 12 on six wins and two losses.

At the other end of the standings, Calgary has two wins in seven starts for four points while the Lions have managed one tie in nine starts.

The Winnipeg-Edmonton game promises to be the big one of the weekend. Winnipeg coach Bud Grant added to the rivalry between the clubs when he said in a television interview that the Eskimos are a bunch of cry babies. He explained that the men of Eagle Keys are always crying the blues about injuries.

However, Grant added, "When Jackie Parker's feet hurt—watch out."

Grant has hinted that he will start Ottawa and Toronto castoff Hal Ledyard at quarterback. Quarterback Ken Ploen will dress, but if Ledyard calls signals Ploen will be a defensive back.

Bulbs Priced to Size

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I have been yakking away about bulbs now for the last several days, bulbs in all their incredible shapes, sizes, colors—and prices. I am finding, through notes in my mail, that the price structure on bulbs is a bit puzzling to novice gardeners, for they vary so much, and at first sight, without much reason for such a wide spread.

Actually, bulb prices are probably more organized and systematic than almost any other class of plant material. Powerful trade organizations exist to maintain carefully enforced standards of quality, and prices are closely related to these standards, together with the good old law of supply and demand.

If any particular bulb is in short supply, you have to pay more for it. This applies to all novelties and, in general, the newer they are, the more they cost. This is why one single bulb of the exquisite white trumpet daffodil Empress of Ireland will set you back $42, while the same amount of money would buy 250 bulbs of the golden King Alfred. I should point out, once again, that the highly expensive newcomers are not necessarily more beautiful than the cheaper old-timers—only rarer.

Nor is newness the only thing that makes some bulbs scarce. Excessive demand may have the same effect, and so will difficulty in propagation, and both factors worked together for many years to keep up the price of yellow crocuses.

Everyone wanted the yellow kind, yet the yellows are precisely the ones most difficult to increase rapidly. The difficulties have since been overcome, and the price of yellow crocus bulbs has dropped to the same level as the blues, whites, purples and mauves.

The biggest factor affecting the price of bulbs, though, is size. By and large, the bigger the bulb, the more it costs, and the spread in price between the largest and smallest bulbs of the same variety can be very great indeed.

As an example, in a gladiolus catalogue I have before me, the No. 1 size bulbs of the variety Green Ice sell for $28 per 100, while the No. 6 size bulbs of the same variety would cost only $6.50 per 100.

Size is of importance to the buyer for two reasons. Below a certain minimum—which will, of course, vary according to the kind of bulb—it isn't likely to produce any flower at all the first year. Above this critical minimum, the flowers get bigger and better with the bulb size, or a really big bulb may produce more than one flower.

You can see this very clearly in some of the top grade daffodil bulbs in which several bulbs are held together like Siamese twins. Obviously, the grower has to get more money for these twin- and triple-nosed monsters, for they take longer to grow and there are fewer available.

At the other end of the scale, small bulbs can be purchased at ridiculously low prices. Whether it is advisable to buy these little fellows depends a lot on how you want to use them.

For potting up and growing indoors, only the biggest and best bulbs will give really satisfactory results. On rich, well-drained and well-tilled soil, an investment in small bulbs can be quite profitable, growing them on in nursery rows until big enough to plant out in the flower beds or to be naturalized in rough grass.

On heavy or sticky soil where even the best bulbs go downhill a bit every year, it is a sheer waste of money to plant small bulbs, for there is nothing you can do to plump them up to flowering size.

Bit of Malice in Wonderland

In a world which sometimes seems to have gone mad, it is refreshing to pause and consider for a moment a children's book which contains a character called "Faintly Macabre, the not so wicked witch." The name of the book is The Phantom Tollbooth and it was written by a bearded elf named Norton Juster and illustrated by Jules Feiffer, who is the cleverest of the younger neotronics. (He just got happily married—which may wreck him as a neotronic cartoonist.)

The Phantom Tollbooth is an amalgam between Gulliver's Travels and Alice in Wonderland and it's about the travels of a boy named Milo through some wacky lands which include, among others, the Island of Conclusions which can only be reached by jumping. I can't imagine a child not liking it and the other day I had a talk with Mr. Juster on the subject of children's books which don't come along in great numbers.

"I grew up in a house where the only books we had was the 20-volume set of the 'Book of Knowledge'. I read them over and over again. I had an awe-inspiring collection of irrelevant facts. I knew nothing about what they meant, but I was the thorn in the side of my teachers. Of course, I also read the Oz books, but to me the most beautiful of children's books was The Wind in the Willows. I was tremendously impressed by the fact that at every stage it offered something different."

"Wind in the Willows" is one of my favorite books, too, and it is written in a dazzling display of words, many of them considered far over the heads of kids. "It doesn't matter much about the vocabulary used," says Juster. "All that matters is that the book has a unifying rhythm to it, a rhythm to keep you going past the words you don't understand. Once you're past 10 years old, there's no such thing as a children's book. A book is good or a book is bad. To put out books for kids from 12 to 16 is just as silly as putting out books for ages 24 through 36. I was constantly being thrown out of the adult section of the library for trying to get to Thomas Wolfe when I was 12 years old."

"I do not forgive those books that never show evil or never deal with a problem—any problem, the problem of nature, for instance. I don't say one has to produce another book of German fairy tales where people get their fingers cut off by enormous scissors, but evil, life, death should be dealt with. Sometimes this is really heresy—evil should triumph."

"A story without point is ridiculous. The author should have something to say, some value he wants to pass on. The ability of kids to understand and to accept is enormous."

"The Phantom Tollbooth" is fantasy and I asked him to define it. "Fantasy," he said, "is the quality of the mind which allows experience to get to the core of the person without letting all kinds of other things to interfere like defences, reactions, prejudices, inhibitions. It is a state of grace as far as I'm concerned because it is being able to take things that have always existed and make new things of them."

"In fiction, reality and fantasy are no different. A character like Mr. Toad in The Wind in the Willows or the Mad Hatter is just as real as any so-called 'real' person in fiction. As a genre, fantasy has been neglected. Most of the children's books tend to be precious and not true. They just don't have the ring of truth in them."

June Hits Higher Note

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—June Allyson may have to undergo another operation. But not right away. Her doctor wants her to add more weight. June is slightly under 90 pounds. She has recovered the use of her voice, but she speaks in an higher tone. "Just like it was when I first met her," says husband Dick Powell.

Olivia de Havilland, vacationing in Burgentstock, Switzerland, has had her mother with her for several weeks. At one time they were not too friendly. But Livvy's happy marriage with Pierre Galante has made her love more people—including sister Joan Fontaine.

From Paris I hear that Edith Piaf is on the mend and will soon be singing again. Peter Sellers, exhausted from "Lolita", "That Uncertain Feeling" and "Waltz of the Toreadors", is taking a vacation from filming until early spring. That's what the funny man says.

Don't get into a battle with Giselle Mackenzie and her husband, Bob Shuttleworth. They not only own eight guns—shotguns, rifles and pistols—but make their own bullets in the garage of their Encino home. Sounds dangerous.

Comedian Frank Gorshin takes over his old job, selling men's pajamas in a department store, when he gets the "local boy makes good" treatment in Pittsburgh, Pa. Frank has finished three movies this year—the latest, "The George Raft Story."

English Blue Laws Probed

Even Prince Philip Would Be in Stocks

LONDON (Reuters)—The government has settled itself to exorcise the spectre of the wicked continental Sunday.

Home Secretary R. A. Butler has ordered a review of the Sunday observance laws, hotly defended by some religious groups but cheerfully ignored by most Englishmen.

This is not to imply that Britons are Sabbath law-breakers. But it is difficult to take seriously a hedgehog of archaic legislation that, for example, says you can paddle but not row a boat on Sunday. England's Sunday laws reach back into the 14th century when Sunday fairs and markets were banned.

A law still on the books prohibits Englishmen from indulging in such sports as cricket and golf in a neighboring parish on Sunday. Hence, Prince Philip could be put in the stocks or fined if he left his home palace area on the Sabbath for a game of polo. The laws are particularly hard on performers. They can appear on stage, but can't dress up.

Singer Hildegard's book—autobiographical—will be published by Doubleday early next year. . . . And from Switzerland I hear that Edna Ferber is writing another novel. . . . And another book note: Linda Christian is in London to get a publisher for her memoirs.

Tammy Grimes is reading "Laurette"—the new version, that is—and if she likes it, she will star as the late great actress on Broadway. Judy Holliday had an out-of-town whirl with the play last season, but it folded on the road.

That first scene in a bedroom with Carroll Baker and Van Johnson in "Come on Strong" may prove too strong for the censors. It's a Carson Karpis offering. . . . As I understand it, both Carroll and Van are in their birthday suits.

Jane Powell and husband Pat Nerney are building a bomb shelter under their Brentwood home, and stocking it with enough food for a year. Also a 525-gallon water tank. That ought to see them through.

Clark Gable always disliked personal publicity. I wonder what he would have said about the five books about him, including widow Kay Gable's, that are now ready for publication.

Yul Brynner and Tony Curtis are learning Spanish, courtesy of "Taras Bulba" producer Harold Hecht, while filming in Argentina. "I want our people to know enough Spanish to keep out of trouble," Hecht explains.

Robert Ryan, back in Hollywood, passed up a BBC-TV special, preferring to spend a week end off from "Billy Budd" filming in London to visit relatives in Ireland. "Which makes me a rotten businessman—for an Irishman," lamented Robert.

Little Hope Held Out That Census Wrong

The director of the census division of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics held out little hope to Mayor Percy Scurrell that census figures showing a drop in the city's population are wrong.

The mayor had written Ottawa asking for a recheck of the Victoria count, which showed the 1961 population to be 53,861, a drop of 723 from the 1956 head count of 54,584.

Replying to the mayor, O. A. Lemieux, director of the census division, wrote that records had been checked and no evidence of under-enumeration had been found.

INDEPENDENT TALLY
Besides this check, another independent tally was conducted through the co-operation of the post office and any dwellings missed by enumerators were reported to census field officials.

"As a result of this city-wide checking and re-enumeration operation, approximately 500 persons, or less than one per cent, were added to the preliminary count for Victoria, which is indicative of the completeness of the enumeration," wrote Mr. Lemieux.

"Through such checks of our figures, it is not considered that there could now be any significant under-enumeration."

He said the preliminary figure would be upped a further one per cent to the final

By Colonist Staff Reporter
CAMPBELL RIVER—Provincial cabinet has given "top priority" to a $1,500,000 surfacing project for the Campbell River-Kelsey Bay road as part of a new road-ferry link to northern Vancouver Island, Premier Bennett announced yesterday.

He said shipping companies will be asked if they are interested in launching a car-passenger ferry service from Kelsey Bay to northern Island ports with Port Hardy as the other terminal.

IF NOT, B.C.

"If they won't provide the service, the government will," said the premier.

He also said after the cabinet met here that a ferry service should be launched between Kitimat or Prince Rupert and Port Hardy.

Premier Bennett declared the provincial government has not given up the idea of a road link from Kelsey Bay to Port Hardy.

LARGE SHARE

This would be built when the federal government agrees it is part of the Trans-Canada Highway and pays a large share of the work.

He would not say when the paving of the Kelsey Bay section of the road would be built but stressed it had been given "top priority."

TRAVEL ON

Once the road-ferry links are in operation travellers will be able to drive north from Victoria to Kelsey Bay, catch a ferry to Port Hardy and then travel on another ferry to Kitimat or Prince Rupert.

'Copter Service Hearing in 1962

A hearing before the Air Transport Board, set for early in the new year, will decide whether or not a 30-minute helicopter service is established between downtown Vancouver and Victoria.

Glenn McPherson, president of Okanagan Helicopters, which applied to the ATB two years ago for a licence to operate the service, said many new factors had compounded the problem of economics.

SUBSIDY NEEDED

He said the need for a subsidy for the service was more acute now, because of added the "excellent service" provided by the B.C. government ferries. "We would not have to have competitive prices, since people would be prepared to pay a premium on the faster service provided by helicopters," said Mr. McPherson.

PENNIES COUNT

But between the new ferry service and the reduced, one-day excursion fares introduced this summer by Trans-Canada Air Lines, "it is getting to the point where pennies count," said Mr. McPherson.

"We are going ahead with the application to the point where we are told that no subsidy is forthcoming," he added.

United Appeal canvassers have collected a total of $40,000 so far it was reported at a meeting of the campaign committee yesterday.

The first progress report of the current campaign showed at least two divisions ahead of last year's figures for the early stages of the drive.

The special names division has brought in $14,940—an increase of $3,950 over last year's figure. Special corporations division reports collections to date of $28,532—up $1,332 over last year.

"There seems to be a much better spirit toward the campaign this year," a drive official said.

OPERATING FUNDS

The drive for $320,000 to provide operating funds for 22 member agencies ends Oct. 31. Employees of two more city firms tied for second place honors to be among the first to reach United Appeal quotas in the current campaign.

Winners of "good citizenship award" plaques are employees of the Royal Bank of Canada, 1102 Fort Street, and Smith Cedar Products, 651 Harbor Road.

PLAQUE GIVEN

Canvassers for both firms reached the 100 per cent participation mark on the heels of the employees of McCall's Funeral Home, who were given a plaque in a special presentation yesterday. McCall's employees were the first to reach their quota in the city. (See picture, Page 2.)

Royal Bank chairman E. C. Brown reported to campaign headquarters yesterday the 14 employees of the branch had contributed a total of $216. This is a per capita donation of $15.43.

PER CAPITA GIFT

The 70 employees of Smith Cedar Products made a total gift of $1,050. Group chairman H. A. Smith said the per capita gift was $15.

The plaques awarded to employee groups that exceed the 80 per cent participation mark are awarded at the end of the campaign.

City Achieves Goals

Dime Meters a Success
Revenue Up, Use DownDowntown Stores
Not Complaining

By TERRY HAMMOND

City officials yesterday pronounced the 10-cent parking meter rate which went into effect July 25 a resounding success.

The doubled rate was intended to increase parking meter revenue by about 50 per cent and drive the city's office-dwelling meter-feeders off the streets in order to make room for shoppers' cars.

A check of engineering department figures yesterday showed both objectives have been attained.

Meter revenue since the rate increase has gone up almost 50 per cent (from about $12,000 a month at this time last year to $18,000 a month this year) and use is off 25 per cent.

NOT COMPLETELY

But still not completely answered is whether the 25-per-cent drop in meter use includes any substantial number of shoppers who have been driven to the suburbs by dime parking.

Indications are that it doesn't.

Mayor Scurrah said he hasn't received a "single complaint from the sensitive downtown shopping district of a reduction in business since the meter rates jumped.

FEW WONDER

Engineering officials who have talked to merchants said the same, but added a few shopkeepers have been wondering whether they wouldn't have enjoyed an upsurge in business if the rate had stayed a nickel.

Mayor Scurrah, one of the supporters of the higher rate in spite of dire predictions it would leave downtown Victoria a commercial wasteland, said he is well pleased with the results.

ABOUT 400 FORCED

He estimated about 400 meter feeders have been forced to find off-street parking arrangements.

One city official cited the Market Square metered parking lot as an example of what has happened on downtown streets.

FORMER HOST

The lot, situated adjacent to the city hall, was formerly host to the cars of a substantial number of city employees who used to feed its two-hour-hour-day cost of 40 cents per car.

Today the cost would be 80 cents and many of the former users have found off-street space for which they pay by the month. Use of the Market Square parking lot has dropped some 30 per cent and more spaces are available for shoppers.

THE COLD SHOULDER

Reporter phoned up the Empress Hotel and asked the girl who answered when the president of Iceland was due to check in.

There was a pause, then the girl said:

"I'm sorry, sir, but we have no record of any ice show coming to Victoria."

"No, no," said the reporter. "He's the president of Iceland."

"Well, I'm sorry," replied the girl, "but he wouldn't necessarily tell us that he was associated with an ice show."

THE PACE SETTER: A member of the local constabulary was spotted the other day strolling through a red light on Government Street.

GUILT COMPLEX: A city resident returned to his car the other day and found a familiar blue paper slipped under his windshield wiper.

He shoved it in his pocket, drove to the traffic office and threw the slip on the counter.

At the same time he dug into his pocket for a dollar, grumbling about the injustice of it all.

Before he could produce his money the girl behind the

Baffle City Council

The words "cluster lights" were waved before city council like a red flag before a bull yesterday and the reaction would have brought a happy look of anticipation to the face of any torero.

All council was being asked to do was sit quietly by as officials opened painting tenders for the over-controversial city lamp standards, but the suspense proved too much.

NEW ARRIVE

First to break was Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, who couldn't resist the temptation to advise councilors they could assure their constituents all inoperative clusters would be fixed some time after Oct. 15 when new bulbs arrive.

The words were hardly out when Mayor Percy Scurrah and Ald. Millard Mooney simultaneously and respectively wanted to know why it would take until Oct. 15 to get new bulbs and why the city had ordered glass globes to go over the bulbs instead of plastic globes.

ANIDE FROM REAR

Ald. Edgelow, chairman of public works, said special bulbs were required, but was prompted in an aside from the rear that this wasn't so—ordinary bulbs would do.

Council advised the works committee to get ordinary bulbs and get the lights working.

Little Lights

Special gifts for visiting VIPs, these tiny model cluster lights being held by Mayor Percy Scurrah are produced by Cluster Crafts Products Co. Ltd. of Victoria. The lights, says Mayor Scurrah, are typically Victorian and unique reminders for visitors.—(Colonist photo.)

Baffle City Council

The contract calls for painting 1,000 of the picturesque cast-iron lamp standards in a special shade of blue, and engineering department officials had estimated the cost at slightly over $3,000.

City works committee was empowered by council to let the contract, and the bids are scheduled to be considered Monday.

William Head Helps

Troubled Fisherman

An unidentified fisherman from Lulu Island was given assistance at William Head minimum security prison earlier this week when his 30-foot gillnetter developed engine trouble, it was learned last night.

The man was permitted to come ashore, telephone for help and remain overnight in his boat tied up at the prison wharf, said a prison official.

"He had a dead battery and we didn't have the facilities to help him out. It's a common occurrence out here and we're always glad to help anybody; it's a matter of courtesy," the official said.

The prison staff was criticized recently for allegedly refusing to assist a couple of fishermen who ran into trouble and tried to land at the prison.

OTHER SIDE OF COIN: A lot of harsh words have been uttered about how unfair the provincial government is being to investors who held stock in the B.C. Electric.

One thing should be remembered.

Even if the charges were true, and a very small minority of stockholders haven't received as much as they should have, the government is being fair to the great majority of us all who pay taxes. Because we're the ones who will have to pay any increase.

And if the B.C. Power Corporation does have a case for the doubling of the compensation paid, maybe taxpayers have a case for halving it.

Route Bugs

B.C. Electric will try to iron some of the bugs out of its new, reduced bus service for Greater Victoria, a company spokesman said yesterday.

New timetables for some routes where drivers had constant trouble keeping on schedule during the monthlong trial period will go into effect five or six weeks from now, he indicated.

Announcement followed a meeting of the company and its bus drivers.

The company will try to adjust timetables rather than change routes. Changes will not be made until two months from the latter part of August when the drivers last signed up. Meantime, extra buses will be put into service when needed.

Marine Drive May Stretch

From City to Goldstream

By JACK FREY

Marine Drive may some day be a long, scenic waterfront route from Dallas Road around Saanich Peninsula to the Trans-Canada Highway at Goldstream.

Possibility of such a route was forecast yesterday by Reeve George Chatterton because of actions taken this week by Saanich and Central Saanich councils.

FIVE-MILE GAP

Each council authorized expenditure of $1,000 to help defray costs of surveying a route to close an existing five-mile gap in Marine Drive on the east coast of Saanich Peninsula.

Central Saanich's appropriation was contingent on the provincial highways department paying an earlier commitment of $7,000 toward cost of the project.

Capital Region Planning Board, in approaching both municipalities for support, announced the government had offered to pay the amount.

Cost to each municipality was set at only $1,000, because the survey will be carried out with a winter works subsidy.

LOOPS BACK

Marine Drive now ends near the Saanich-Central Saanich border and loops back to the Patricia Bay Highway. About five miles north is another short road which circles the tip of the peninsula.

Reeve Chatterton, chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board, stressed the need for a survey now if a marine drive connecting Dallas Road to the Trans-Canada Highway is to become a reality.

"If we don't define the route now, chances are we may never get it, because houses and other improvements will be put in there.

"The problem is to establish where the road would be, but not to acquire the land. Once the route is established by survey it becomes simple from there on."

The entire route may eventually be named Marine Drive, from Dallas Road at the southern extremity to a logging road across Mount Finlayson in Goldstream Park, which would be reconstructed into a link with the highway.

Is it considered mandatory that a catamaran craft be used, and if so, to what specifications?

At what times of day should harbor clearing take place?

Should clearing be done seven days a week?

Between what annual dates should clearing take place?

What solution can the chamber offer for removal of oil-slick from the surface of the water?

How does the chamber reconcile the suggestion of Capt. Veres that an elderly man be employed for harbor clearance at an "economic rate" with a section of the Municipal Act which precludes the city from entering into any contract involving payment of sub-standard wages?

Saint-Laurent was called up for military service 12 months

Thousands Around

Lazy Trappers to Blame For Surplus of Beavers

HAULT STE MARIE. Ont. (CP)—In the height of the fur-trapping days fears were expressed that the beaver, Canada's national emblem, might be threatened with extinction. Now they're running around by the thousands in Northern Ontario and trappers apparently are not working very hard to harvest them.

REAL REASON

The reason, says Charlie Cook, department of lands and forests conservation officer here, has more to do with laziness than declining fur prices.

As an illustration he points to the experience of two Indian trappers and their families whom the department transferred last year from Moonachie on James Bay to Michipicoten Island in Lake Superior.

The island, nine miles off shore and about 100 miles northwest of here, has long been noted as a beaver haven, and the department didn't want to see a population explosion.

In 100 trapping days spread from Oct. 15 to March 31 the Indian pair trapped 1,176 beaver that netted them $14,000 at the May sales of the Ontario Trappers Association at North Bay.

PRIME RANGE

Prices ranged from $3 for baby beaver to $16 for prime pelts.

A white trapper working independently on the island got 122 beaver during the season and agreed with the Indians that despite the trapping pressure, there was no indication of a serious decline in the beaver population. The animals appeared to be as plentiful in the spring as they had been in the fall.

Cook was asked why, if two trappers can earn $14,000 in a season, there aren't more professionals in the bush.

"Laziness, just laziness," he said.

In the Algoma district, he said, some trappers have gone into the business on a big scale and are using snow toboggans and aircraft to check their lines.

GOING IS GOOD

"These resourceful few are willing to trap for the season's 168 days while the majority get out only when the going is good and prefer to stay at home during winter snows."

Mental Cases Aided

Recovery Speeded By Camp Holiday

EDMONTON (CP). Sixteen mental hospital patients were given a resort vacation last summer to test an idea for speeding their recovery.

Within two days of the return from camp arrangements were made to release one of the 16 from the hospital. Her recovery was speeded by her stay at camp, said G. Grant Smith, executive director of the northern Alberta region of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

TAKEN TO LAKE

The patients, from the nearby Oliver Hospital, were taken to Cottage Lake, a resort 35 miles west of here. They were cared for by four staff nurses and 11 Mental Health Association volunteers.

Mr. Smith said the patients enjoyed living among non-patients, wearing resort clothing and participating in outdoor activities.

PLAYED SPORTS

They played ball and badminton, pitched horseshoes and swam. Eight who went to camp as non-swimmers received Red Cross beginners' certificates.

Mr. Smith said he was pleased with the way the Cottage Lake people accepted the patients. He was optimistic that more such holidays would be arranged.

Plucky Icebreaker Back from Arctic

By EDMUND COSGROVE

Twelve pairs of beady little eyes peered nervously at Victoria's skyline yesterday.

Twelve bushy little tails wagged nervously as 12 almost brand-new masters tried to lure 12 little Husky pups away from their last link with the frozen north—the Mv Cammell—and introduce them to the city streets of Victoria.

The plucky Cammell returned at 1 p.m. after a cruise of 10,110 miles through the Western Arctic during which she:

- Broke the record for early entry into the Western Arctic;
- Answered two "Mayday" distress signals;
- Rode out a gale that reached 85 miles an hour;
- Gave medical treatment to three injured seamen.

The ship, which soon takes up winter duties as a light-house tender on the west coast of Vancouver Island, left June 22 for her second trip into the Arctic. Her duties—supply six DEW-line establishments, check aids to navigation in the region and act as icebreaker (the role she was designed for).

She entered the Western Arctic July 9—breaking the record for any ship entering that ice-locked region.

The Cammell radio operator picked up a "Mayday" distress call July 17 from the Hudson's Bay supply ship, Fort Hearn, caught in the ice and badly holed.

The Cammell's helicopter, piloted by Doug Callin, guided the ship to the scene of the wreck.

The survivors were found on an ice floe and taken aboard the Cammell. The ship's surgeon, Dr. Roy Walker, treated slight injuries suffered by the chief engineer and mate of the Fort Hearn.

The disabled ship was towed to Bernard Harbor.

Just over a month later the RCMP patrol boat Spaulding called for help, reporting a jammed rudder.

The Cammell found her on the second day of the search and towed her to safety.

Cammell's own trial came

Dance, Cleanup Job Finish Frosh Week

Some 700 Victoria university students last night flocked to a two-band annual frosh dance at the Crystal Garden ballroom.

At least 500 of the group were freshmen, admitted to the dance after buying "frosh hats" and coffee for five seniors. Upperclassmen, however, paid $2.50 a couple.

THREE PATRONS

Patrons of the dance were Professors Anthony Emery, Alan T. J. Cairns and Hugh Farquhar.

High jinks at the dance included the famed "Kangaroo Court" in which freshmen are tried for not adhering to regulations enforced on them during the past week.

Ending Frosh Week is the driftwood cleanup at Willows Beach from 1 to 2 p.m. today where firewood will be on sale to the public and donations handed over to the United Appeal fund.

Other activities included an informal dance and corn feed at Gordon Head auditorium and a "club's day" on the college campus.

During the week, new students were introduced to the varied activities available to them as part of university life.

Many joined—or prepared to join—bowling, golf and drama clubs and the Student Christian Movement.

For Big Fair

Jaycees Consider Move to Esquimalt

Esquimalt Sports Centre will get "very favorable consideration" when Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce decides where to hold its annual fair next spring, fair director Eric Charman said last night.

He confirmed the fair will be held either at Memorial Arena or the Esquimalt Sports Centre, with whom the Jaycees are now negotiating.

"We're going to go to whatever site presents possibilities for the best fair. We are not wedded to the arena," said the fair director.

UNLEASH ATTACK

The Junior Chamber also unleashed a scathing attack countering charges by the Greater Victoria Celebrations Association.

A simmering feud between the two groups erupted into the open this week.

The Jaycee brief said in part, in reply to one prepared by M. F. Hunter for the celebrations group:

"In our opinion it is more than coincidental that on every occasion that these attacks have been levelled they have always emanated from the tongue or pen of Mr. M. F. Hunter, a representative from the Victoria City Hall Employees' Association.

"If the entire membership of the GVCA is solid in its support for Mr. Hunter's brief, then in our opinion this can only be due to one of two reasons.

• "The GVCA membership has never had an opportunity to become fully informed with all the aspects of the various areas of criticism.

• "The GVCA is not enjoying support because there is not the demand from the population of this area for the type of program they are trying to present, and instead of recognizing this fact a few diehards are prepared to try and attribute all their failures and ills to a source from which they certainly do not originate."

Forces 'Waste Men'

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the 15,000 increase in Canada's armed forces announced early this month was approved by the government in the face of a finance department report stating that many thousands of men were already being wasted in the navy, army and air force.

The paper says it learned the report was put before the cabinet by the Treasury Board two months ago and that it maintained there was enough available evidence of misused manpower to warrant an intensive survey of personnel employment in the three services.

CUT IN HALF

"As a result of the fierce opposition of Finance Minister Fleming, the original defence department request for another 30,000 men was cut in half but the additional cost to the treasury in a full year for the 15,000 men will run as high as $150,000,000 annually, the story says.

"The finance minister argued that the defence department should be able to find the men it needs to expand the operational capability of the armed forces without any increase in total manpower by making far more efficient use of the personnel it already had.

CUT 20,000

"The report from the Treasury Board, submitted before the Berlin crisis, led to cabinet consideration of an increase in the armed forces, intimated that anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 men could be cut out of the total force of 120,000 without reducing the efficiency or effectiveness of the three services."

Husband Eaten

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — Mrs. Kathleen McKay, a widow, is claiming $7,000 ($31,000) from the Katanga government on the grounds her husband was eaten by cannibals while serving with the Katanga army.

Acting UN Chief Urged by West

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States and Canada said in different words Friday that an executive officer must be appointed as interim successor to Dag Hammarskjöld despite the opposition of the Soviet Union.

External Affairs Minister Green told correspondents "we do strongly support" the appointment of a United Nations' secretariat interim chief to fill the void left by Secretary General Hammarskjöld's death in a plane crash. U.S. State Secretary Rusk said in a statement "action must be taken now to assure that the functions of the office of the secretary-general are performed effectively and fully while agreement is sought on the appointment of a new secretary-general."

WORK ON RESOLUTION

These developments came while a group of middle-of-the-road countries worked on a proposed resolution for the 39-member UN General Assembly to name a temporary head for the secretariat. Some 30 countries were reported behind the resolution.

Green said Canada was strongly behind the move for the assembly to act on the appointment, which would not carry the title of secretary-general.

ABOLISH OFFICE

The question is complicated because the Soviet Union has demanded that the secretary-general's post be abolished and replaced by a "troika" three-man directorate with three-way veto powers. It says that only the 11-member Security Council is empowered by the UN charter to recommend an appointment to the assembly.

Green met reporters shortly after conferring with U Thant, Burma's permanent representative at the UN who is mentioned as a prospect for the interim job.

Canada Goes Into the Red

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government had a deficit of $22,000,000 on August operations which put it in the red for the first five months of the 1961-62 fiscal year, the finance department reported Friday.

Five-month deficit was $71,400,000. Finance Minister Fleming expects a budgetary deficit of $650,000,000 for the year ending next March 31.

home of the British prime ministers."

"Hear, hear," chorused 82 members of Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, the carpenters' union.

"I trust that when Labor returns to power, we will be invited here again to sort out our little problems," McCleery added.

"Make him prime minister," shouted one of the carpenters attending one of the strangest meetings in the long history of No. 10.

The famous dwelling — together with numbers 11 and 12 — is undergoing extensive repairs. Eighty-two workers of the $3,500,000 job are carpenters.

Columbia Pact Safe—Williston

By PETER BRUTON
Colonist Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER—Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston is "relying on U.S. pressure" to change Ottawa's adamant stand against the export of Columbia River power.

The minister told residents here that he did not think the U.S. would become fed up waiting for Ottawa and Victoria to come to terms and turn to other sources of power for their needs.

"They (the U.S.) are not going to run off the Columbia despite what some people are saying," said Mr. Williston in an address at the Marina Hotel. "They'll stay with us."

WONT LAPSE

Later he confided: "I don't think the Columbia treaty will lapse unless the federal government gets too bull-necked about it."

Mr. Williston said the U.S. needed the Columbia and would pressure Ottawa for a change in its stand against the sale of the downstream benefits.

CHEAP POWER

Such a sale, he said, "will ensure British Columbians of the first really cheap power they have ever had in history."

And he said it would be virtually impossible for the province to absorb the downstream benefits if they came back here.

"If Ottawa says you can't export... they've got the power to make a decision," he said.

SELL AT PROFIT

"B.C.'s stand is that we can sell it and sell it at a profit. Five mills is a profitable sale. It will pay the amortization costs of dams at Mica Creek, High Arrow and Duncan Lake. When people say we are selling out the Columbia, that's the cost on the Columbia and its zero cost."

Under terms of the Columbia treaty, he said, B.C. would create the storage for the U.S. and in return would get benefits "on line immediately" of about 70 per cent more power.

ABSORB OVERNIGHT

"We've got to absorb it," said the minister. "It took us about 12 years to absorb the Bridge River generation which was about the same amount. But we've got to absorb it."

overnight or else let it go to waste."

Mr. Williston added: "It doesn't matter a hill of beans what the Columbia power costs unless you can sell every kilowatt."

Firms Look North

Colonist Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two large industries are investigating the possibility of establishing plants in the central interior as a result of the government's decision to go ahead with the Peace River power project, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston disclosed here yesterday.

He said one was a chemicals industry and the other was to do with the electrolytic processing of metals.

"One of the companies is big league," said the minister who refused to say whether they were U.S. or Canadian firms.

REQUIRE BIG BLOCKS

Both would require large blocks of power, however. Mr. Williston said two other companies were considering establishing pulp mills in the Prince George area and the chemicals would be used for the pulp processing.

He said representatives of the companies considering establishing plants in the central interior had called on him in the last few weeks to determine the government's plans for the Peace River project.

Mr. Williston announced this industrial interest in the north to back up his statement that the Peace was necessary if secondary industries were to be established to provide more jobs.

The question, Mr. Fulton said, in a later speech to University of British Columbia students, was:

"Shall we use this cheap power as a cornerstone on which to build a great industrial complex, or shall we float it down the river like so many logs as that our American

Accept Columbia Or Scrap It Fulton Tells B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton declared Friday that the next move on development of the Columbia River is up to Premier Bennett and his Social Credit government.

He told reporters at a press conference that B.C. must make up its political mind whether it wants the international treaty on Columbia development — "and if not, that's the end of it." Ottawa would not try to force B.C. to accept anything it did not want to accept.

He reiterated a charge that the provincial government had changed its position since the Columbia negotiations. It now insisted on sale of Canada's share of downstream benefit power to the U.S., something which the federal government would not condone.

U.S. 'RESTLESS'

The Americans were getting "restless" to get on with the project. If no action was taken soon the U.S. would be forced to commit itself to other power sources and B.C.'s chance of power at 3.6 or even 3.4 mills per kilowatt hour would be lost. Yet the premier was trying to tell the people that Columbia power would cost 6.35 mills per kilowatt hour.

Don't Forget to Put Clocks Back Tonight

Clock-setting time is here again.

British Columbia reverts to Pacific Standard Time at 2 a.m. Sunday, requiring that clocks be set back one hour.

Federal, B.C. Tories Heal Seven-Year Rift

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Federal and provincial Conservatives in British Columbia shook hands and officially made up Friday.

For the first time since 1954, when anti-George Drew feelings split the party in B.C., Progressive Conservatives will be operating from one office, with one constitution, and one executive.

A special convention of the B.C. Conservative Association made the tie complete by adopting a new constitution.

It took six hours of debate, but was passed unanimously by the 70 delegates. Justice Minister Davie Fulton will speak at a luncheon today.

Busy Visitor

Busy day in Victoria was put in yesterday by Iceland's President Asgeir Asgeirsson, who spent much of his short visit here meeting former Islanders President Asgeirsson, on a cross-country tour, leaves today for Vancouver. — (Colonist photo.)

Threat of War Never Greater Says Khrushchev

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Premier Khrushchev said Friday the threat of war is perhaps greater now than it has been at any time since the Second World War, and declared Russia ready to negotiate for peace at any time or place at any level.

Khrushchev blamed the West for world tension and said any talks between him and President Kennedy should be part of a wider plan to draw up a German peace treaty.

DISARMAMENT PACKAGE

Again he linked the questions of complete and universal disarmament and the question of nuclear weapons tests and said both questions must be solved simultaneously.

Khrushchev made the statements in a letter sent to leaders of the non-aligned nations, who attended a summit conference in Belgrade earlier this month.

ANSWER TO NEUTRALIA

The letter was an answer to a letter delivered from the Belgrade conference by Indian Prime Minister Nehru and Ghana President Nkrumah. Khrushchev's letter to Nehru, as reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, charged the West with "intensifying military preparations in every way."

Egg-Hurling Students Face Action

University students responsible for turning a downtown parade into an egg fight Thursday face a threat of being either fined or barred from campus activities for the rest of the year.

City police yesterday handed the issue over to the student council. A number of students' names were taken during the disturbance.

The council has authorized an investigation.

Wreckage Recovered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Search and rescue officials said Friday a piece of wreckage spotted by a U.S. fishboat has been identified as part of the Strebtor J, a 30-foot troller missing since Tuesday with H. Snow of Port Alberni aboard. The wreckage was recovered Friday by a U.S. fisherman.

'It Was, You Might Say, Historic'

LONDON (AP) — Irishman Alan McCleery looked up from a table in the cabinet room of No. 10 Downing Street Friday and called the meeting to order.

"Comrades," said Belfast-born McCleery, "it isn't every day that our branch can meet in the cabinet room of the home of the British prime ministers."

"Hear, hear," chorused 82 members of Amalgamated Society of Woodworkers, the carpenters' union.

"I trust that when Labor returns to power, we will be invited here again to sort out our little problems," McCleery added.

"Make him prime minister," shouted one of the carpenters attending one of the strangest meetings in the long history of No. 10.

The famous dwelling — together with numbers 11 and 12 — is undergoing extensive repairs. Eighty-two workers of the $3,500,000 job are carpenters.

When time came for a meeting, McCleery, the union's London district secretary, reasoned the best place to hold it would be on location.

For the last five months, Prime Minister Macmillan has been using quarters in Admiralty House.

Interviewed after the No. 10 meeting, McCleery said:

"It was, you might say, a historic meeting for the Woodworkers' Union."

The meeting lasted 10 minutes and took place during the morning tea break.

Subject under discussion was tea breaks.

The union reaffirmed its belief in them — on company time.

Life-Savers

I have read with interest the report of the meeting of the Greater Victoria Current Affairs Council in The Daily Colonist Sept. 20 under the byline of Edmund Cosgrove.

It is unfortunate that the remarks of Commodore V. S. Godfrey were not completely reported. When Dr. R. H. Wright had demolished the necessity for shelters during nuclear war to his own satisfaction and had stated that they were essentially useless, Commodore Godfrey quoted the opinion of Dr. G. M. Shrum, former head of the department of physics, University of British Columbia, which was contained in the Aug. 1961 issue of EMO National Digest: "The recent laudable attempts of our government to encourage the construction of fallout shelters seem to have intensified the controversy."

"The fact of the matter is that fallout shelters, like dugouts, will save lives. It doesn't matter where a bomb bursts there will always be a surrounding area where there will be no casualties except from fallout, and fallout shelters will protect those who have them. Since the fallout radiation decays rapidly, a few hours in a shelter may make all the difference between life and death. The first strike by an enemy would be aimed at missile and bomber bases rather than at population centres. The latter may then be in an area where the only danger would be from fallout, a danger which could be overcome by shelters."

"Many of the questions asked at this meeting could be resolved by reference to the speech of Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the House of Commons on Aug. 10, 1960."

Weapons

I notice by the paper that the members of the school board are concerned about the schoolteachers wearing spike-heeled shoes, with some basis for their argument, however, I feel that they used rather a heavy-handed method with regard to the tonnage of these individual teachers, for one must admit that some three-quarters of the said tonnage lands on the ball of the foot; therefore it is doubtful if these executive gentlemen have much of a case. So why not approach the situation from the angle of "totting dangerous weapons?"

For should one of these matrons of learning get into a too heated argument with a sister of the profession — or the principal for that matter — all she has to do is reach down and yank off a shoe, and, used as a nightstick, it could be disastrous.

TOM D. BATESON.

Indifferent

In view of present perplexing and uncertain world situation the alien complacency of Victoria citizens is hard to understand. Although we have not been told if we are to accept and use nuclear weapons, or if we have a voice in methods to be used to assure survival of our grandchildren, we seem completely indifferent, and with no suggestions to those assuming authority revealing either our opinions or our choices of procedure. Whether this attitude is due to complete trust in our top men, to childish innocence, or to mindless indifference is the $64 question. There is the possibility, though, that due to bargain-day sales advertising, money to be made by guessing the right man-of-the-hour, the best and cheapest cigarette or the lowest gas-consuming car or best and cheapest fur coat or hat, we have become dollar-minded.

Has the dollar to be gained at bingo, or by guessing correct answers on radio, supplanted interest in human interest and human survival? No doubt we are a wonderful people, if we really understand ourselves. But since at the moment we are uncertain whether to put our trust in "faith" or in basement shelters, I doubt if any one of us does.

Snow Starts Autumn

Winter Early in Edmonton

EDMONTON (UPI) — Winter made an earlier than usual appearance here Friday, the first day of autumn, as light snow fell during the morning.

The weather office predicted snowflurries throughout the weekend but the snow, mixed with rain, was melting as soon as it touched the ground.

Weathermen said the system bringing the snow and rain moved in from the Peace River district, where a few flurries were reported.

The overnight temperature here dropped to 34 degrees and the weather office said temperatures would continue some 15 degrees below normal, due to a static body of cold, moist air over the Prairies.

Pressure on Ottawa Sought from U.S.

There had been talk, he continued, of selling the power to the U.S. for a year or so until B.C. could absorb it.

NO FIRM ENERGY

"The U.S. has got all the secondary energy it wants but it hasn't got firm energy," said Mr. Williston.

"If we only agree to sell it to the U.S. for two or three years the U.S. doesn't want it and can't pay any more than two mills to 2½ mills for it," he said. "If we sell it at this dump price it's already costing us four mills so the cost therefore to us will be six mills. And if we're not using all of it transmission costs go up."

NO DISPUTE

The minister hit out at critics who said there was a dispute between Attorney-General Robert Bonner and himself and Premier Bennett over power policies.

"We are constantly being badgered into a corner by people saying there is a difference of opinion," said Mr. Williston. "Nothing could be further from the truth."

B.C. had insisted that the final financial arrangements for construction of the Columbia project must be made by federal Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Premier Bennett.

GRADUALLY DISAPPEAR But B.C. found it impossible to try and create "a bridge" between the two men.

Mr. Williston said that in due time the downstream benefits to be paid in the form of power by the U.S. would gradually disappear.

Then B.C. would be paid nothing, he maintained.

neighbors can further enlarge their rich and thriving economy in the Pacific Northwest."

Cheap power—the Columbia would provide eventually some 8,750,000 kilowatt hours of energy a year—was essential to the future prosperity of B.C. Yet Premier Bennett wanted to sell this to the U.S. and develop the Peace River through the recently expropriated B.C. Electric, he said.

Mr. Fulton sidestepped at his news conference a direct answer to a question as to whether Ottawa would step in to block the Peace. He said a federal survey will go ahead on possible effects on Mackenzie River navigation by the Peace. There were other unresolved problems, such as timing of construction, available markets and the price of power.

But in his university speech the federal minister said it was "absolutely untrue" to say that the federal government was "opposed to the Peace River development."

Federal concern was with Premier Bennett's proposal to sell Canadian Columbia benefits to the U.S. On the Columbia treaty, Premier Bennett now attacked "the very features of the treaty which were insisted upon by his own cabinet ministers appointed by him to cooperate with Ottawa in the direction of negotiations."

"We are satisfied that although the treaty is not as good as it might have been had the federal government's proposals been accepted, nevertheless it is a good treaty with very great advantages to Canada."

'Worst Sort of Prejudice' Jails B.C. Indian Drinkers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Restrictive liquor legislation breeds more ill-feeling and suspicion in the minds of young Indians than anything else, Roderick Haig-Brown, author, naturalist and Vancouver Island magistrate, declared Friday.

Addressing the Burnaby Historical Society, the Campbell River magistrate said restrictive liquor legislation brings Indians "into court when they shouldn't be there—it is the rankest kind of discrimination."

Speaking from 20 years' experience as a magistrate, he said the provincial government since 1956 has had the remedy in its hands through revision of the Indian Act giving the provinces the right to grant Indians liquor rights.

"In social legislation we're similarly backward," he said. "There is no probation officer in the province specially trained for Indian work. There is in fact no one at all at such Indian points as Alert Bay or the Prince Rupert area."

"For want of this kind of service Indian young people are sent to jail and industrial schools when white children would not be."

Mr. Haig-Brown also said the Indians once harvested salmon properly and lived by them.

"There was room for the white man but they let in so many white men and damaged the runs so badly."

"Now there is neither a proper living for white or Indian."

He felt the Indians had some responsibility. They should produce leaders from among themselves and "get over suspicion of the white man."

QUEBEC (CP) — The issue past, to a "trust" of party supporters which flared up briefly at the Union Nationale leadership convention last Friday, the men in charge of the party did not quickly find a compromise proposal about seven others, none of whom would be members of the legislature.

The convention's committee on constitutional matters watered down the original draft resolution by striking out all references to self-determination. The resolution had been proposed by the party organization in Quebec County, long a hot-bed of French-Canadian nationalism.

Meanwhile, the convention's political committee took steps to remove control of party funds from one man, as in the MONTREAL (UPI) — The first reinforcements for Canada's contingent to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization sailed for Europe Friday.

The 400 troops are joining NATO forces in Germany. They are the first result of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's promise to strengthen Canada's forces in Europe.

Singing Career Awaits Geoffrion

Just Call Him Sh-Boom-Boom

By JIM TAYLOR

A few years from now some teen-ager may look through his collection of hit records and find names like Ricky, Elvis, Fabian, Boom-Boom.

That's right. Boom-Boom, Bernie "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion, goal-scoring de luxe of Montreal Canadiens, has plans to become a popular singer.

Of course, all this will happen only when he becomes too old for the rigors of the National Hockey League, and right now hockey, definitely comes first. But it only took a few minutes of talk with the bulky French-Canadian to learn that he is deadly serious about the idea.

"I got an offer to make records from an agent who handles guys like this Fabian," Geoffrion said. "I never asked anyone on the club executive how they would feel about it, and right now all I'm interested in is hockey. But later, who knows?"

"What are you going to sing, Bernie?" asked a slight skeptic. "Sh-Boom-Boom would be a natural, or you could try 'Canadiens Sunset'."

"No, I don't think so," he smiled. Then he trotted out his background as a singer.

Last year he was brought to Toronto and appeared on a CBC network television show with Joan Fairfax, singing "C'est Manifique" and "Dear Hearts and Gentle People."

"And when I was younger, I won a contest in Montreal when they had a singing competition in the city's parks," Geoffrion added.

"I was really impressed with those fellows in Toronto. They showed me everything, and this agent said if I want to make a record they will coach me."

But first, to hockey.

The man who scored 30 goals last year, fired 12 winners and scored in nine consecutive games to tie records held by Maurice Richard, isn't too worried about a relatively slow start in training camp.

"I always start slow, and the legs are just fat," he said. "But I've had more legs for two years. The legs will tell me when I'm ready."

Geoffrion is 30, which means he hasn't got a great many hockey seasons left. It partly explains his interest in a singing career.

"If I was an unknown I'd have to start right at the bottom singing," he explained. "Hockey has given me everything, and it might help me get started singing too."

It's fair reasoning.

After all, Fabian was just a teenage kid with a wild haircut when he was discovered. And how many goals did he ever score?

ROGER MARIS ... full classic

Maris' Hair Falling Out Because of Homer Tension

Roger Maris hasn't been saying much about the pressure that was on him while he tried to break Babe Ruth's home run record, but the truth is out—and so is his hair.

Yesterday the New York Yankee star admitted the strain had been so great that his hair has been falling out in tufts, sending him rushing to a Baltimore doctor.

"I was afraid it was some kind of a disease," Maris said. "But the doctor said it was just a case of nerves caused by strain and tension. He told me it had been building up for some time and said I'd probably have some bald spots but the hair would eventually grow back again."

There were other items in aftermath of the Maris madness.

Mrs. Babe Ruth admitted a sign of relief and heaven she didn't want to see Maris break the Babe's record of 60 in a season.

"I have the highest regard for Roger Maris," she said. "He's a fine hitter. But the Babe loved that record. He wanted to be known as the king of home runs forever."

Meanwhile Bob Reitz of Baltimore, who retrieved the ball Maris hit for No. 39 Wednesday, put it on display in a Baltimore sausage market and waited for an offer.

Maris has tried twice to buy the ball, but yesterday was told Reitz wanted $2,500 for it. Reitz later said he would "settle" for two tickets and an expensive road trip to the world series.

He may settle for less. Yesterday a wife offering $300 for the ball came from a man in Miami. It was addressed simply to "the man who caught the ball that Roger Maris hit Wednesday."

400-Foot Cliff

Big Truck Falls Driver Escapes

ALBERNI — RCMP yesterday completed their investigation into an accident which sent a huge tandem truck and a bulldozer off a 400-foot cliff on the Alberni-Tofino highway Wednesday night.

Brakes on the big truck failed near Rock Bluff and driver Nicholas La Roche of Burnaby leaped to safety as his vehicle plunged over the sheer rock wall, carrying a bulldozer with it.

Damage is estimated at $30,000 in the mishap. Both units belonged to Custom Contractors Co. Ltd. of Burnaby.

Jungle Law 'Ended' In Global Politics

PORT ALBERNI — "Our chances of surviving in a nuclear war" are frightfully slim," Gen. Charles Foulkes, former chairman of the Canadian chiefs of staff, told the Alberni Valley Canadian Club this week.

He outlined the problems facing Canada in the nuclear age, emphasizing everything in the power of the people must be done to prevent war.

The alternative is to face total destruction of the world and civilization, he said.

"The use of force to attain a political end must be abandoned," said Gen. Foulkes. "Brute force is out; the law of the jungle is finished."

He called the UN as the best chance for international peace.

The general said there is no longer a possibility of geographical security for Canada.

"All we can do is to seek collective security with our European partners and ally with the U.S.," he added. "Neutrality is an old fallacy and would not save Canada in the threat of war."

CAMPBELL RIVER—Provincial cabinet has given "top priority" to a $1,500,000 surfacing project for the Campbell River-Kelsey Bay road as part of a new road-ferry link to northern Vancouver Island, Premier Bennett announced yesterday.

He said shipping companies will be asked if they are interested in launching a car-passenger ferry service from Kelsey Bay to northern Island ports with Port Hardy as the other terminal.

IF NOT, B.C.

"If they won't provide the service, the government will," said the premier.

He also said after the cabinet met here that a ferry service should be launched between Kitimat or Prince Rupert and Port Hardy.

Premier Bennett declared the provincial government has not given up the idea of a road link from Kelsey Bay to Port Hardy.

LARGE SHARE

This would be built when the federal government agrees it is part of the Trans-Canada Highway and pays a large share of the work.

He would not say when the paving of the Kelsey Bay section of the road would be built but stressed it had been given "top priority."

TRAVEL ON

Once the road-ferry links are in operation travellers will be able to drive north, from Victoria to Kelsey Bay, catch a ferry to Port Hardy and travel on another ferry to Kitimat or Prince Rupert.

From there they will be able to journey north to Alaska on the car-passenger vessels now being built for the Alaska state government.

MILLION SPENT

Highways Minister Gagliardi said that at least $1,000,000 is being spent on road construction in the Comox riding.

The minister also said Premier Bennett promised full support on a planned paving project of the Forbes Landing-Camp 8 road.

Recreation Minister Westwood said in the future tourists would be more fully advised on forest closures after charges by the Chamber of Commerce here that visitors were sometimes scared away by the forest hazard.

Comox, Powell River To Lose Ferry Link

COURTENAY—Ferry between Powell River and Comox by Coast Ferries will be discontinued at the end of this month.

O. H. New, managing director of the firm, said the run will be resumed as soon as permanent landing facilities are installed at each terminal.

At present twice weekly runs are being made across the strait with a mobile landing ramp used at Comox.

Promised Liquor Store

CAMPBELL RIVER — Dan Campbell, MLA for Comox, announced here yesterday the government will build a liquor store at Alert Bay to serve the northern end of Vancouver Island.

He telegraphed the news to Alert Bay and received a reply stating "the tight little island is happy."

Tenders will be called in the usual manner and construction will start "right away," said Mr. Campbell.

Trustees Convinced Of Pupils' Danger

DUNCAN—Parents of Tansor School children, who are walking to school along the busy Somerses Highway, convinced Cowichan school trustees last night there was real danger and something should be done about it.

A deputation led by Mrs. Clifford Sellars was told by chairman Mrs. Isobel Tarlton the board was well aware of the problems and had asked the provincial highways department to widen the road. Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi had replied to the effect his department had already done some work and was waiting to negotiate certain rights-of-way. He promised to check into the situation.

The deputation pressed the board to use a high school bus to transport the Tansor children from Drinkwater Road but was informed no bus was available. One bus, thought to have some room on it, was in fact full and could not be used for "courtesy pickups."

The board and deputation agreed to visit Mr. Gagliardi jointly to discuss with him the widening of the road.

A move by parents to keep the children from school because they are fearful of their safety is not likely to be carried out yet, parents say.

Indian Affairs Scholarship Awarded to Kyuquot Girl

PORT ALBERNI — Announcement was made here this week that Catherine Leo, a 17-year-old Kyuquot girl who has attended Smith Memorial School for the past two years, has been awarded a $1,200 Indian affairs branch scholarship for first-year university.

Miss Leo has already enrolled at UBC.

John C. Lawrence, district superintendent of Indian education, announced the award. He said he believed it was the first time one of the branch's university scholarships had been given to a Vancouver Island student.

EARLY EDUCATION

The scholarship winner received her early education at Kyuquot Day School and attended the Christie School on Kikawia Island and the Residential School at Mission before coming to Smith Memorial.

She has had a consistently good record throughout her years at school.

Miss Leo expects to graduate from UBC and is interested in a career in law or psychology. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Leo of Kyuquot.

COURTENAY — First shipments of copper ore from Mount Washington are expected to be made this week. The company was almost ready to make the first shipment when the woods were closed recently.

Trucks will take the ore to the Courtenay River to be loaded on barges for shipment to Britannia.

SPROUT LAKE — Planning problems in unorganized territory will be the subject of a talk by a representative of the regional planning commission at the next meeting of Sproat Lake Ratepayers' Association, according to an announcement made at the September meeting.

A decision was made to circulate a petition to determine how many of the property owners in the area are in favor of making the district an organized area.

PARKSVILLE — A total of 3,000 cars were registered at Parksville tourist bureau during the summer months and it is estimated at least 500 more stopped at the bureau but the drivers did not take time to register.

Visitors were from many parts of the world including the West Indies, British Isles, New Zealand, Hawaii, other parts of Canada and the United States.

PORT ALBERNI — A man convicted of the same offence last December was sentenced this week to 21 days in jail on a false pretences charge. The charge against Amos Wedge was laid when he passed a worthless cheque for $10 in Woodward's store.

City Achieves Goals

Dime Meters a Success Revenue Up, Use Down

Downtown Stores Not Complaining

By TERRY HAMMOND

City officials yesterday pronounced the 10-cent parking meter rate which went into effect July 25 a resounding success.

The doubled rate was intended to increase parking meter revenue by about 50 per cent and drive the city's office-dwelling meter-feeders off the streets in order to make room for shoppers' cars.

A check of engineering department figures yesterday showed both objectives have been attained.

Meter revenue since the rate increase has gone up almost 50 per cent (from about $12,000 a month at this time last year) to $18,000 a month this year and use is off 25 per cent.

NOT COMPLETELY

But still not completely answered is whether the 25 per cent drop in meter use includes any substantial number of shoppers who have been driven to the suburbs by dime parking.

Indications are that it doesn't.

Mayor Scurrah said he hasn't received a single complaint from the sensitive downtown shopping district of a reduction in business since the meter rates jumped.

FEW WONDER

Engineering officials who have talked to merchants said the same, but added a few shopkeepers have been wondering whether they wouldn't have enjoyed an upsurge in business if the rate had stayed a nickel.

Mayor Scurrah, one of the supporters of the higher rate in spite of dire predictions it would leave downtown Victoria a commercial wasteland, said he is well pleased with the results.

ABOUT 400 FORCED

He estimated about 400 meter feeders have been forced to find off-street parking arrangements.

One city official cited the Market Square metered parking lot as an example of what has happened on downtown streets.

FORMER HOOT

The lot, situated adjacent to the city hall, was formerly host to the cars of a substantial number of city employees who used to feed its two-hour meters legally at an eight-hour-day cost of 40 cents per car.

Today the cost would be 80 cents and many of the former users have found off-street space for which they pay by the month. Use of the Market Square parking lot has dropped some 30 per cent and more spaces are available for shoppers.

What does the chamber consider a suitable specification for harbor clearance?

Is it considered mandatory that a catamaran craft be used, and if so, to what specifications?

At what times of day should harbor clearing take place?

Should clearing be done seven days a week?

Between what annual dates should clearing take place?

What solution can the chamber offer for removal of oil/sleek from the surface of the water?

How does the chamber reconcile the suggestion of Capt. Veres that an elderly man be employed for harbor clearance at an "economic rate" with a section of the Municipal Act which precludes the city from entering into any contract involving payment of sub-standard wages?

There was a pause, then the girl said:

"I'm sorry, sir, but we have no record of any ice show coming to Victoria."

"No, no," said the reporter. "He's the president of Iceland."

"Well, I'm sorry," replied the girl, "but he wouldn't necessarily tell us that he was associated with an ice show."

THE FACE SETTER: A member of the local constabulary was spotted the other day strolling through a red light on Government Street.

GUILT COMPLEX: A city resident returned to his car the other day and found a familiar blue paper slipped under his windshield wiper.

He shoved it in his pocket, drove to the traffic office and threw the slip on the counter.

At the same time he dug into his pocket for a dollar, grumbling about the injustice of it all.

Before he could produce his money the girl behind the

Couldn't Resist

Light Aficionados Get Into the Act

The words "cluster lights" were waved before city council like a red flag before a bull yesterday and the reaction would have brought a happy look of anticipation to the face of any torero.

All council was being asked to do was sit quietly by as officials opened painting tenders for the ever-controversial city lamp standards, but the suspense proved too much.

NEW ARRIVE

First to break was Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, who couldn't resist the temptation to advise councilors they could assure their constituents all inoperative clusters would be filed some time after Oct. 15 when new bulbs arrive.

The words were hardly out when Mayor Percy Scurrah and Ald. Millard Mooney simultaneously and respectively wanted to know why it would take until Oct. 15 to get new bulbs and why the city had ordered glass globes to go over the bulbs instead of plastic globes.

ASIDE FROM REAR

Ald. Edgewood, chairman of public works, said special bulbs were required, but was prompted in an aside from the rear that this wasn't so—ordinary bulbs would do.

Council advised the works committee to get ordinary bulbs and get the lights working.

Little Lights

Special gifts for visiting VIPs, these tiny model cluster lights being held by Mayor Percy Scurrah are produced by Cluster Crafts Products Co. Ltd. of Victoria. The lights, says Mayor Scurrah, are typically Victorian and unique reminders for visitors.—(Colonist photo.)

Lamp Painting Bids Baffle City Council

City officials are scratching their heads over cluster light painting bids opened yesterday—they ran from a low of $2,900 to a high of $12,057. Worried that the big spread might have resulted from an error in interpreting the specifications, a quick check was made which showed practically no possibility of a mistake.

The contract calls for painting 1,009 of the picturesque cast-iron lamp standards in a special shade of blue, and engineering department officials had estimated the cost at slightly over $3,000. City works committee was empowered by council to let the contract, and the bids are scheduled to be considered Monday.

William Head Helps Troubled Fisherman

An unidentified fisherman from Lulu Island was given assistance at William Head minimum security prison earlier this week when his 30-foot gillnetter developed engine trouble. It was learned last night.

The man was permitted to come ashore, telephone for help and remain overnight in his boat tied up at the prison wharf, said a prison official.

"He had a dead battery and we didn't have the facilities to help him out. It's a common occurrence out here and we're always glad to help anybody; it's a matter of courtesy," the official said.

The prison staff was criticized recently for allegedly refusing to assist a couple of fishermen who ran into trouble and tried to land at the prison.

Never Mind Back Talk Just Send the Tickets

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

Reporter phoned up the Empress Hotel and asked the girl who answered when the president of Iceland was due to check in.

There was a pause, then the girl said:

"I'm sorry, sir, but we have no record of any ice show coming to Victoria."

"No, no," said the reporter. "He's the president of Iceland."

"Well, I'm sorry," replied the girl, "but he wouldn't necessarily tell us that he was associated with an ice show."

THE FACE SETTER: A member of the local constabulary was spotted the other day strolling through a red light on Government Street.

GUILT COMPLEX: A city resident returned to his car the other day and found a familiar blue paper slipped under his windshield wiper.

He shoved it in his pocket, drove to the traffic office and threw the slip on the counter.

At the same time he dug into his pocket for a dollar, grumbling about the injustice of it all.

Before he could produce his money the girl behind the counter opened the slip and showed it to him—same size, same color as the ticket, but really an ad for a city tire firm.

SAFETY FIRST: When Highways Minister Phil Gagliardi travelled to Campbell River for the cabinet meeting yesterday he steered well clear of RCMP on his beautiful highways. He flew in by aircraft.

LONG WAY AROUND: A letter from Honolulu was received by Mr. and Mrs. Whitworth Shapbury this week—two months and 11 days after it was posted.

It was addressed to 162 Prospect Place, Victoria, B.C., Australia, and was mailed July 11.

The letter finally turned up here after an Australian post office official jotted on the envelope: "Try Canada."

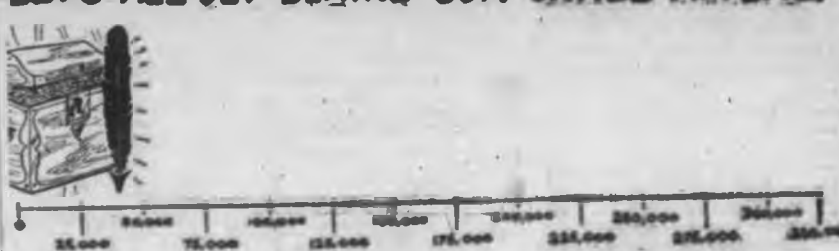

OTHER SIDE OF COIN: A lot of harsh words have been uttered about how unfair the provincial government is being to investors who held stock in the B.C. Electric.

One thing should be remembered.

Even if the charges were true, and a very small minority of stockholders haven't received as much as they should have, the government is being fair to the great majority of us all who pay taxes. Because we're the ones who will have to pay any increase.

And if the B.C. Power Corporation does have a case for the doubling of the compensation paid, maybe taxpayers have a case for halving it.

LET'S ALL GET BEHIND OUR UNITED APPEAL!

Pastor Inducted Sunday

Rev. L. M. Carlson will be inducted as new pastor of Hope Evangelical Lutheran Church Sunday at 9 p.m., succeeding Rev. C. C. Janzow who has been appointed institutional chaplain for the Greater Victoria area.

Mr. Carlson, coming here from Port Couillard, has just taken up residence with his wife in the renovated parsonage at 2124 Chambers Street.

He was a 1955 graduate from Concordia Seminary, Springfield, Ill., and Port Couillard became his first pastorate in August of that year.

Rev. V. Eichenlaub of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Nanaimo, counsellor of the Vancouver Island circuit of Missouri Synod congregations, will induct Mr. Carlson, and Rev. H. Behling of Redeemer Lutheran Church, Langford, will preach.

Oak Bay Chapter, Order of Demolay, will hold a church parade Sunday at 7.30 p.m. at First United Church.

Rev. William F. Wills, evangelist and youth leader, will conduct youth meetings at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, 1039 Yates, each evening at 7.15 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24, to Friday, Sept. 29.

Guest preacher at St. Peter's Lake Hill family service, Sunday at 11 a.m., will be Rev. Eric Lowe, missionary on furlough from India.

A continuing series of lectures on "The Bible as History," conducted by Dr. Joseph A. Pearce at the Church Monday at 7.30 p.m. instead of Sunday evening, is attracting growing interest.

Bottles Carry Gospel

NEW YORK (AP)—Down by the riverbank, Jewell Pierce, 43, sends his gospel message far and wide.

"I cast it upon the water," he said, "in clear glass bottles, sealed with cork."

Pierce, of Piedmont, Ala., calls himself the "bottle and water evangelist."

In the last 23 years, he has thrown 27,000 bottles, stuffed with printed religious literature which he pays for, into Alabama's Coosa River, the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic Ocean.

He has had responses from 5,640 persons in 28 American states and nine countries, as far away as Salonika, Greece. That one took 13½ years to get there.

Should fluoride be made a privilege for children whose parents possess the knowledge and resources to provide it? As the Ontario investigation concluded, there is no practical alternative to the fluoridation of municipal water supplies in those areas where the water is deficient.

Let not workers for public enlightenment become discouraged. In Canada four times as many people drink fluoridated water compared with five years ago. The population affected by fluoridation has increased by 960,000. Nearly 2,000 United States communities with a population of 38,000 now fluoridate their water. Don't despair of democracy! Truth has always had a hard time of it, but truth is like the sun. Who can prevent it from rising?

Forces 'Waste Men'

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the 15,000 increase in Canada's armed forces announced early this month was approved by the government in the face of a finance department report stating that many thousands of men were already being wasted in the navy, army and air force.

The paper says it learned the report was put before the cabinet by the Treasury Board two months ago and that it maintained there was enough available evidence of misused manpower to warrant an intensive survey of personnel employment in the three services.

CUT IN HALF

"As a result of the fierce opposition of Finance Minister Fleming, the original defence department request for another 30,000 men was cut in half, but the additional cost to the treasury in a full year for the 15,000 men will run as high as $150,000,000 annually," the story says.

"The finance minister argued that the defence department should be able to find the men it needs to expand the operational capability of the armed forces without any increase in total manpower by making far more efficient use of the personnel it already had."

BEFORE BERLIN

"The report from the Treasury Board, submitted before the Berlin crisis led to cabinet consideration of an increase in the armed forces, intimated that anywhere from 10,000 to 20,000 men could be cut out of the total force of 120,000 without reducing the efficiency or effectiveness of the three services."

Husband Eaten By Enemy

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Mrs. Kathleen McKay, a widow, is claiming $7,000 ($31,000) from the Katanga government on the grounds her husband was eaten by cannibals while serving with the Katanga army.

Acting UN Chief Urged by West

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States and Canada said in different words Friday that an executive officer must be appointed as interim successor to Dag Hammarskjöld despite the opposition of the Soviet Union.

External Affairs Minister Green told correspondents "we do strongly support" the appointment of a United Nations secretariat interim chief to fill the void left by Secretary-General Hammarskjöld's death in a plane crash. U.S. State Secretary Rusk said in a statement "action must be taken now to assure that the functions of the office of the secretary-general are performed effectively and fully while agreement is sought on the appointment of a new secretary-general."

WORK ON RESOLUTION

These developments came while a group of middle-of-the-road countries worked on a proposed resolution for the 99-member UN General Assembly to name a temporary head for the secretariat. Some 30 countries were reported behind the resolution.

Green said Canada was strongly behind the move for the assembly to act on the appointment, which would not carry the title of secretary-general.

Green met reporters shortly after conferring with U Thant, Burma's permanent representative at the UN who is mentioned as a prospect for the interim job.

STAY INNIDE

But the Canadian foreign minister would not say whether U Thant had professed himself a candidate. Green said there was no need to look outside the UN for a candidate. When a reporter mentioned that Rusk had called for "an outstanding world leader" for the job, Green said he would not "have put it quite like that."

Canada Goes Into the Red

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government had a deficit of $2,300,000 on August operations which put it in the red for the first five months of the 1961-62 fiscal year, the finance department reported Friday.

Five-month deficit was $77,400,000. Finance Minister Fleming expects a budgetary deficit of $650,000,000 for the year ending next March 31.

"Make him prime minister," shouted one of the carpenters, attending one of the strangest meetings in the long history of No. 10.

When time came for a meeting, McCleery, the union's London district secretary, reasoned the best place to hold it would be on location.

For the last five months, Prime Minister Macmillan has been using quarters in Admiralty House.

Interviewed after the No. 10 meeting, McCleery said:

Threat of War Never Greater Says Khrushchev

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Premier Khrushchev said Friday the threat of war is perhaps greater now than it has been at any time since the Second World War, and declared Russia ready to negotiate for peace at any time or place at any level.

Khrushchev blamed the West for world tension and said any talks between he and President Kennedy should be part of a wider plan to draw up a German peace treaty.

Again he linked the questions of complete and universal disarmament and the question of nuclear weapons tests and said both questions must be solved simultaneously.

Khrushchev made the statements in a letter sent to leaders of the non-aligned nations, who attended a summit conference in Belgrade earlier this month.

The letter was an answer to a letter delivered from the Belgrade conference by Indian Prime Minister Nehru and Ghana President Nkrumah.

Khrushchev's letter to Nehru, as reported by the Soviet news agency Tass, charged the West with "intensifying military preparations in every way," adding: "It appears that these countries are not averse to using for a general showdown the central question which brooks

Egg-Hurling Students Face Action

University students' responsible for turning a downtown parade into an egg fight Thursday face a threat of being either fined or barred from campus activities for the rest of the year.

City police yesterday handed the issue over to the student council. A number of students' names were taken during the disturbance.

The council has authorized an investigation.

Columbia Pact Safe—Williston

By PETER BRUTON
Colonist Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER—Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston is "relying on U.S. pressure" to change Ottawa's adamant stand against the export of Columbia River power.

The minister told residents here that he did not think the U.S. would become fed up waiting for Ottawa and Victoria to come to terms and turn to other sources of power for their needs.

"They (the U.S.) are not going to run off the Columbia despite what some people are saying," said Mr. Williston in an address at the Marina Hotel. "They'll stay with us."

WON'T LAPSE

Later he confided: "I don't think the Columbia treaty will lapse unless the federal government gets too bull-necked about it."

Mr. Williston said the U.S. needed the Columbia and would pressure Ottawa for a change in its stand against the sale of the downstream benefits.

CHEAP POWER

Such a sale, he said, "will ensure British Columbians of the first really cheap power they have ever had in history."

And he said it would be virtually impossible for the province to absorb the downstream benefits if they came back here.

"If Ottawa says you can't export ... they've got the power to make a decision," he said.

WELL AT PROFIT

"B.C.'s stand is that we can sell it and sell it at a profit. Five mills is a profitable sale. It will pay the amortization costs of dams at Mica Creek, High Arrow and Duncan Lake. When people say we are selling out the Columbia, that's the cost on the Columbia and its zero cost."

Under terms of the Columbia treaty, he said, B.C. would create the storage for the U.S. and in return would get benefits "on line immediately" of about 70 per cent more power.

ABSORB OVERNIGHT

"We've got to absorb it," said the minister. "It took us about 12 years to absorb the Bridge River generation which was about the same amount. But we've got to absorb it."

overnight or else let it go to waste."

Mr. Williston added: "It doesn't matter a hill of beans what the Columbia power costs unless you can sell every kilowatt."

Firms Look North

Colonist Staff Reporter

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two large industries are investigating the possibility of establishing plants in the central interior as a result of the government's decision to go ahead with the Peace River power project, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston disclosed here yesterday.

He said one was a chemicals industry and the other was to do with the electrolytic processing of metals.

"One of the companies is big league," said the minister who refused to say whether they were U.S. or Canadian firms.

REQUIRE BIG BLOCKS

Both would require large blocks of power, however.

Mr. Williston said two other companies were considering establishing pulp mills in the Prince George area and the chemicals would be used for the pulp processing.

He said representatives of the companies considering establishing plants in the central interior had called on him in the last few weeks to determine the government's plans for the Peace River project.

Mr. Williston announced this industrial interest in the north to back up his statement that the Peace was necessary if secondary industries were to be established to provide more jobs.

The question, Mr. Fulton said in a later speech to University of British Columbia students, was:

"Shall we use this cheap power as a cornerstone on which to build a great industrial complex, or shall we float it down the river like so many logs so that our American

Accept Columbia Or Scrap It Fulton Tells B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Justice Minister Davie Fulton declared Friday that the next move on development of the Columbia River is up to Premier Bennett and his Social Credit government.

He told reporters at a press conference that B.C. must make up its political mind whether it wants the international treaty on Columbia development—and if not, that's the end of it. Ottawa would not try to force B.C. to accept anything it did not want to accept.

U.S. 'RESTLESS'

He reiterated a charge that the provincial government had changed its position since the Columbia negotiations. It now insisted on sale of Canada's share of downstream benefit power to the U.S., something which the federal government would not condone.

The Americans were getting "restless" to get on with the project. If no action was taken soon the U.S. would be forced to commit itself to other power sources and B.C.'s chance of power at 3.6 or even 3.4 mills per kilowatt hour would be lost. Yet the premier was trying to tell the people that Columbia power would cost 6.33 mills per kilowatt hour.

Don't Forget to Put Clocks Back Tonight

Clock-setting time is here again.

British Columbia reverts to Pacific Standard Time at 2 a.m. Sunday, requiring that clocks be set back one hour.

Federal, B.C. Tories Heal Seven-Year Rift

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS

(CP) — Federal and provincial Conservatives in British Columbia shook hands and officially made up Friday.

For the first time since 1954, when anti-George Drew feelings split the party in B.C., the Conservatives will be operating from one office, with one constitution and one executive.

A special convention of the B.C. Conservative Association made the tie complete by adopting a new constitution. It took six hours of debate, but was passed unanimously by the 70 delegates.

Justice Minister Davie Fulton will speak at a luncheon today.
